Reed Tells Huge Sum Labor Pays

Kansas Senator Reports Unions Have Taken 30 Millions from U. S. Defense Workers

Probe Is Asked

Judiciary Group Asked to Make Full Survey of 'Scandal'

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Senator Reed (R., Kan.) told the senate today that workers on war and defense projects had been forced to pay "at least $30,000,000" fees to labor unions.

The Kansas Republican senator said his estimate was based upon personal investigations of union charges on a defense project near his home city of Parsons, Kans., as he urged congressional approval of his bill which would make it illegal to require union membership for a job on any project financed with federal funds.

Reed urged a senate judiciary subcommittee to make a complete investigation of what he termed "scandals" and "racketeering elements" in unions on various defense projects under the army engineer corps.

The senator said that on the ordnance project near his home city that common laborers had been forced to pay a $12 initiation fee and $2 monthly dues to a local of the International Hod Carriers Union of the American Federation of Labor.

Obnoxious, Offensive

He said in a lengthy prepared speech that this union "is not only notorious, but is obnoxious and offensive and smells to high heaven."

Reed told the senate that this single project netted unions about $216,000 in fees of various kinds "based on my personal investigation." He said a similar computation on all projects under the army engineer corps indicated that a widespread "closed shop" program for A.F.L. construction trade unions had cost workers $30,370,903.

The senator said this was based on an initiation fee of $25 for common laborers and truck drivers, $50 for carpenters, and $100 for electricians and plumbers.

"I do not know how much was actually collected," the senator said. "Nobody knows but the labor union officers, and they do not tell anyone, not even the members of their unions. They do not have to report to anyone and the only way to disclose the exact amount would be through a thorough and exhaustive investigation * * * ."

Reed said that his investigation—made while he was resting under doctor's orders—disclosed "waste, extravagance, slow-downs, overtime and inefficiency were rife in virtually all plant construction."

The senator said that union leaders from both the A.F.L. and Congress of Industrial Organizations had appealed to him for a full investigation of these complaints and they also had appealed to "William Green, the weak president of the A.F.L." without success.

"Honest courageous leadership would demand a house-cleaning," he continued. "Unfortunately, the American Federation of Labor does not now possess such leadership."

The senator said he had been a long-time friend of organized labor but was willing "to impose restrictions upon some labor practices" because he regarded this in the "general public interest."

MoreCasualties Announced

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The war department says the Japanese killed 226 army men and wounded 396 at Pearl Harbor December 7. These figures were given in a revised casualty list issued last night which contained 87 new names. An incomplete earlier listing had given the total as 168 killed, 223 wounded and 26 missing.

Fighting Cocks Seized

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—More than 100 fighting cocks wre turned over to the Mohawk and Hudson River Humane Society today by Rensselaer County District Attorney Earl J. Wiley, who said the birds were seized in a Troy raid last night.

Daylight Saving Ends

Melbourne, Australia, March 30 (AP)—With winter approaching, Australia discontinued daylight saving time at 2 a. m. today, setting clocks back an hour. (Australia thus is 14 hours ahead of eastern war time.)

Nazi Sub Base Invaded by British Commandos

British Commandos invaded St. Nazaire (above), the great Nazi submarine base on the French Brittany coast, in what appeared to have been an attempt to duplicate the World War 1 coup of Zeebrugge and destroy the harbor locks by blowing up an old warship crammed with explosives. The big ship tied up at the dock is the ill-fated Normandie.

B.W.S. Closes Road On Dividing Weir

Guards Will Be Posted at Reservoir to South Ashokan Boulevard

By an order of the United States Army issued out of headquarters on Governors Island the Board of Water Supply of New York city has requested that the section of the road running from the dividing weir to the South Ashokan boulevard be closed to traffic.

In accordance with the order and request of the City of New York, Ulster County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran today closed the road to all traffic, and guards will be posted. This is the section of the road connecting the northern and southern boulevard and running over the main dam at Brown Station from the dividing weir to the south boulevard near the Tongore road.

Guards have been stationed at the end of the dividing weir for some time. Beginning today there will also be guards stationed at the junction with the south boulevard and no traffic will be permitted to use the route. Crossing the dividing weir from Shokan it will be possible to turn left and use the road over the dyke southerly or go down the ramp to the highway near the aeration basin.

Traffic Deaths Decrease

Chicago, March 30 (AP)—America's climbing total of traffic deaths was checked last month for the first time since July, 1940, the National Safety Council reported today. The February toll was 2,380 as compared with 2,590 in the same month of 1941. The drop was eight per cent and ended 18 months of continuous increase.

Gulf Will Be Mined

Caracas, Venezuela, March 30 (AP)—The Ministry of War and Marine announced today that beginning April 1 the Gulf of Paria, between Trinidad and the mainland, would be mined. The United States has at Trinidad a defense base which was leased from Britain in the destroyer trade of 1940.

Four Senators and Four Assemblymen Would Be Appointed to Make Investigation

Albany, N. Y., March 30—An investigation of the activities of the State Liquor Authority and of local alcoholic control boards apparently had full support today of the legislature's Republican majority leadership.

Influential party sources said the inquiry of the Democratic-controlled state agency was favored by Thomas E. Dewey, regarded in capitol circles as certain to be again a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination this year.

A resolution calling for the investigation will be introduced in the legislature before the week's end, Republican chieftains said, by Senator Walter Mahoney, Buffalo Republican.

Mahoney earlier in the session introduced a resolution requesting a similar inquiry on the ground the authority and local A.B.C. boards have drawn "wide-spread criticism throughout the state" relative to their "activities and general administration."

This proposal, a Republican leader said, will be killed in committee and the new "more inclusive" measure substituted. Passage of the proposed investigation, he added, would be assured by majority Republican votes.

The resolution will ask for an investigation by a legislative committee comprised of four senators to be appointed by Republican Senate Majority Leader Joe R. Hanley and four assemblymen selected by Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck.

Report Is Expected

Governor Lehman, meanwhile, was expected to transmit to the legislature tonight a report of a three-year study of the state's executive machinery by Robert M. Benjamin.

Benjamin, appointed a commissioner by Lehman in 1939 to make a "thorough appraisal" of the subject, advised against any broadening of the scope of judicial review of determinations by state agencies. The inquiry was launched after defeat in 1938 of a proposed constitutional amendment to give

British Say Base At St. Nazaire Is Crippled for Year

U-Boats Will Be Forced to Seek New Port, Is Anglo Belief: May Curtail Sinkings

London, March 30 (AP)—Damage which British commandos inflicted at St. Nazaire in a daring raid Saturday morning should cripple that German submarine base for a year and curtail U-boat activities in the North Atlantic for some time, a well-informed source said today.

Any submarines in the basin probably were left high and dry, experts declared, by destruction of the pumping station and the main lock gate, while those now at sea will have to return to other bases.

They visualized the possibility that constant bombing of St. Nazaire by the R.A.F. might make repairs so difficult the Germans would be forced to concentrate their underseas raiders elsewhere—perhaps at Lorient or Bordeaux.

Survivors of the commandos who carried out the raid received a heroes' welcome on their return home yesterday and their exploit was generally acclaimed as one of the most spectacular in British military history—ranking with the famous World War assault on Zeebrugge.

Although it was acknowledged the percentage of British losses in casualties probably was high, official reports on the outcome of the raid pictured it as a great success.

An informed source said that as a matter of fact British losses in killed, wounded and missing probably were less than 100.

German assertions that defense batteries had thwarted the main purpose of the raid by sinking the former American destroyed Buchanan before she could be rammed into the main lock of the basin with her five-ton load of explosives were flatly denied.

On the contrary, a communique said, the Buchanan—renamed by the British the Campbeltown—rammed the center of the lock gate so hard that "she came to a standstill only when the bridge was abreast the gate itself."

An eyewitness account of this exploit was given by Gordon Holman, Exchange Telegraph correspondent who accompanied the British forces and reported that the Campbeltown went to her appointed end with guns blazing defiantly.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The position of the treasury March 27: Receipts $82,816,012.54. Expenditures $122,378,273.21. Net balance $3,586,476,528.63. Working balance included $2,825,768,370.17. Customs receipts for month $28,276,315.31. Receipts fiscal year (July 1) $8,872,538,562.44. Expenditures fiscal year $19,867,262,620.76. Excess of expenditures $10,994,724,058.32. Gross debt $62,252,514,846.02. Increase over previous day $20,453,723.89. Gold assets $22,685,022,536.29.

Food Supplies Purchased

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that it had bought more than $800,000,000 worth of food and farm products during the first year's operation of the lend-lease program. The bulk of the products were bought for shipment to Great Britain, Russia and other United Nations needing supplies of American food.

New Guinea Floods Hit Jap Forces

Japanese Are Reported to Have Lost Tenth of Cruisers and About 1,025 Planes

Loss Is Great

Flood Losses Affect Jap Palns to Build Air Bases

Melbourne, Australia, March 30 (AP)—Japanese forces have made a 27-mile withdrawal in New Guinea as the result of floods rolling down the mountainsides of the Markham Valley and their position is further menaced by heavy American and Australian air blows which have crippled a tenth of their entire cruiser strength, Australian war reports said today.

Japan's recession from the high point of her invasion of Australia's outer islands was marked by Air Minister A. S. Drakeford, who declared that in addition to her cruiser losses she had suffered destruction of 48 bombers and fighters in recent weeks.

(Military quarters in London said official allied reports list 1,025 Japanese planes destroyed since Pearl Harbor. This would be from a fourth to a sixth of the Japanese air force).

"These successes achieved with comparatively small forces are no longer to be regarded as merely of tactical significance," he declared. "They have made a marked strategical difference to the war."

Dispatches from Port Moresby, the New Guinea anchor end of the great barrier reef defenses of Northeastern Australia, told of the Japanese withdrawal in the Markham Valley.

A downpour inundated the flatlands along the Markham river and its tributaries, where the Japanese were attempting to establish many subsidiary air fields, and forced the Japanese to withdraw from most of the valley, these dispatches said.

As a result, Japan's New Guinea forces are now centered at Lae, Salamaua and Finschaven on the coast, where they landed March 8 and succeeding days. Their greatest penetration of the valley had been to Nadzab, 27 miles inland.

Moreover, the dispatches said, the wet season in New Guinea is just beginning.

Fruitless Accomplishment

As a result, Japan's painful occupation of the valley has been made a fruitless accomplishment.

Drakeford said "the American and RAAF attacks on Lae March 10 and since have probably crippled more than 10 per cent of the total cruiser strength with which the Japanese entered the war."

(This meant that four or five cruisers had been destroyed or put out of action, since Japan is estimated to have had 40 or 50 cruisers to begin with. In addition she has lost numerous cruisers in the Netherlands East Indies, off Wake Island and in other war theatres).

In addition to the 48 Japanese bombers and fighters destroyed or probably destroyed over Australia and surrounding Austalia in recent weeks, Drakeford said at least 15 others had been damaged.

Previous estimates have placed Japan's losses around the Australian islands at upwards of 50 ships, including transport and cargo vessels, and thousands of men.

Drakeford's announcement and the New Guinea withdrawal emphasized the weakening of Japan's aerial blows in recent days and the fact, that despite her efforts, she has been able to accomplish little in the last three weeks.

(The Melbourne radio, according to a CBS pickup, said today that Japanese planes shot down showed signs of Japanese maintenance problems in the New Guinea climate. One captured fighter's cylinders were so heavily coated with carbon that the engine could not function in first class manner, the broadcast said. It added that one Australian squadron now in action had 200 enemy planes to its credit in the middle east).

With the Japanese meeting reverses, Gen. Douglas MacArthur faced a busy week of conferences to shape plans for further defense and offense.

General MacArthur, United Nations supreme commander in the southwest Pacific, already has met General Sir Thomas Blamey, commander of Australi's land troops, and they are believed to have discussed the main outlines of the defense problems along with other high United States and Australian officers.

Sweeping changes have been indicated, among them General Blamey's announcement that commando units will be organized.

GermansLose Warship In Arctic Sea Fight

Nazis Claim 10,000-Ton Transport Loaded With Tanks Is Sunk Off Murmansk; Libyan Air Battles Are Reported by Rome

(By The Associated Press)

The war that Adolf Hitler started on the Polish frontier 31 months ago, was today a tangled contest of sea and air power in western Europe and the Mediterranean Basin, and, above all, an effort to break the deadlock on the 2,000-mile Russian front.

An the blizzard-swept Arctic seaway to Murmansk, the Germans acknowledged that one of the Fuehrer's precious destroyers went down in battle with a convoy to Russia, but claimed the sinking of a 10,000-ton transport loaded with tanks and munitions.

Once more in Libya, fighting columns of the British imperials struck into German and Italian positions behind the Tmimi-El Mechili line. In these Saturday night forays, it was said, highly mobile field guns were turned on Axis positions.

Rome reported large air battles over Libya and claimed for German fighter planes destruction of four British aircraft and new bombing raids on Tobruk and Malta were reported.

The blows of Britain's springtime aerial offensive fell last night on German shipping off the Norwegian coast.

The British announced that action without detail and said that in Saturday night's raid on Germany's big Baltic port of Luebeck the R. A. F. bombers struck down two intercepting planes while in last Thursday night's attack on the Ruhr valley one was downed.

There was no word in the R. A. F. communique to substantiate a German radio report that German territory also was bombed last night.

The Berlin communique, issued after the broadcast, said that the Dutch coast was attacked in the night and that two British planes were shot down.

The British air ministry news service said the R. A. F. was using fast fighter-bombers and night fighters in extended sweeps against enemy territory.

The German high command reported "severe losses" among civilians in Saturday night's attack on Luebeck.

The Germans reported that renewed Russian attacks on the eastern front had collapsed, and specifically mentioned the sector east of Kharkov. Armament factories on the upper Volga were bombed yesterday and the center of Moscow last night, the communique said.

Leningrad and the nearby Baltic naval base of Kronstadt were reported shelled "with good success."

A colder turn in the weather on most of the Russian front contributed to a general stalemate, although the Russians declared that the Germans had been routed on the Kalinin front.

Without giving date or place, the British admiralty reported that a new destroyer, the Brocklesby, had shot down one Junkers dive bomber and seriously damaged another without loss or damage to itself.

On the Russian front, the Red army was reported to have crushed strong German counter-attacks on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow and turned them into a Nazi rout after a five-day battle. The fight was said to have cost the Germans at least 2,450 dead and many wounded.

One or two German planes raided Moscow yesterday for the second time this year, causing some casualties. The Russians said they were the only planes out of a Nazi formation to penetrate the city's defenses.

India's Great Act Now Must Be That Of Helping British

Country Must Prevent Any Setback From Japanese Invasion; Dilemma May Be Solved

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Britain's offer of independence to India in the form of dominion status puts Indian leaders to a supreme test to show what caliber of statesmanship they possess to warrant self-government.

It is not an easy moment for either party, for the problems are mountainous. There will be heart-burnings among those who seek utter severance from the British crown. However, teachers like Gandhi, who is one of the great minds of our time, will recognize that in conceding even the right of secession to the greatest of her possessions, England has gone about as far as one would expect the mother country to go this side of the millennium.

Even the difficult issue involved in the Moslem demand for a state separate from the Hindus is taken care of by a provision that there may be more than one dominion government in the Indian empire. Thus, unless one section of the population insists on imposing its will on another section, this politico-religious dilemma finally may be solved.

Must Be Accepted

Sir Stafford Cripps, blunt man of few words, who conveyed this offer to India, has said that he has a fortnight to devote to the negotiations, and that the proposal must be accepted in toto. But what sounds like an ultimatum probably is softened in the minds of the Indian leaders by their knowledge that this leftist political runner-up to Premier Churchill has been championing the cause of Hindustan's self-government. Reports from Delhi indicate that Cripps has made considerable progress.

Britain's conservative statesmen hold that India isn't ready for self-government. They base this view on the fact that according to the latest official figures some 87 per cent of the people are illiterate in this vast country which contains

Chinese Get Back Series Of Villages

Japanese Airmen Raid Darwin, Australian Mainland City, Stab at Moresby

Council Is Formed

Roosevelt Says Pacific War Council Created for Six Nations

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
(Associated Press War Editor)

Japan, seemilgly stymied in her drive toward Australia by floods in New Guinea and mounting losses of warships and planes, is making Burma her main battleground and there also, by today's reports, the going has become harder.

The ferocity of the Burma drive might be accounted for as part of a determined gamble for position there at the gateway to India for an all-out Indian offensive depending on India's assent to Britain's offer of post-war freedom in return for full war assistance now.

Chinese veterans on the eastern (Toungoo) wing of the Burma line were reported today to have recaptured several small villages from the invader in a counterthrust launched yesterday. Fighting in to close quarters, the Chinese seized mortars, heavy guns, horses and other material. Casualties were heavy on both sides.

To the west, British Imperial forces had taken a battle stand about 30 miles south of Prome.

On the invasion arc north of Australia, the Japanese made a 27-mile withdrawal in New Guinea from Markham valley bases, ahead of floods rolling down the mountain sides, while their other footholds and sea communications were menaced by the growing strength of the American-Australian air team.

Japanese airmen struck at Darwin, on the northern Australian mainland, this afternoon while one bomber and three navy fighter planes ineffectually raided Port Moresby, New Guinea capital and defense base south of the Markham valley.

Eighth Raid for Darwin

For Darwin it was the eighth raid of the war; for Port Moresby the 22nd.

On the third front in the southwest Pacific—Bataan Peninsula, in the Philippines—Japanese attacks were reported to day to have dwindled to patrol actions after repulse of the enemy offensive with heavy losses. The aerial pounding of the fortified island of Corregidor, continued however, said a Washington communique.

President Roosevelt announced creation of a new Pacific war council, giving representation to Australia and New Zealand along with Britain, China, Canada and the United States, and called the first meeting for Wednesday.

The new council will maintain liaison with a similar body in London. The leaders of India's major political parties indicated that their decision on the British offer of dominion statue would not be reached until later in the week.

Sir Stafford Cripps, member of the British War Cabinet, who carried the proposals to them, said in a New Delhi address today that "if they are rejected nothing can be done until after the war."

He called defense of India, which Britain has undertaken, "part of the worldwide defense against aggression."

Dominion Status Promised

While a bloody contest surged toward a new decision on the Burma approach to India, within 300 miles of the nearest Indian frontier, India's leaders pondered today Britain's tempered offer of freedom and it apparently had evoked favorable reaction by some of them.

The British promise was dominion status, including secession rights, after the war but it hung by immediate and full Indian participation in the war against the new order hammering at India's gates.

On the Burma battle front, Chinese forces barring the Mandalay railway to the Japanese, were locked in a hand-to-hand struggle with the foe in which at least half the casualties were sustained at bayonet point.

At Toungoo on the upper reaches of the Sittang river, some 200 miles by rail from Mandalay, the Chinese were struggling against a growing Japanese force to hold the eastern anchor of the Allies' Burma defense line.

Part of Toungoo had been abandoned in favor of positions along the railway north to Mandalay.

This railway is one of two lines which fork northward out of Rangoon.

Baptist Missionary Braves Perils Of Burmese Jungle to Corral Food

By DANIEL DELUCE

With the Chinese Army on the Toungoo Front, March 28—(Delayed), (AP)—Disregarding danger from Japanese bombers and wild Dacoit tribesmen, an American missionary still is marshalling food supplies for the Chinese armies in Burma at an off-bombed Baptist agricultural school behind the front.

Civil authorities long since have departed from the surrounding area but Dr. Brayton Case, a lean, middle-aged, Burma-born New Englander whose only son is studying medicine at Harvard, still is sticking to his job.

"Vegetables for Victory," he said with a smile as I paused to visit him en route to the front.

"I just sent off six truckloads of cabbages to the Chinese army," he explained, "and I've got 20 or 30 hogs ready to go. As long as I'm here I'm sure I can get the farmers of this district to sell me all they can produce.

"The agricultural school is unharmed, although firebugs burned a section of the town this week. I'm getting a couple of Chinese soldiers to stand guard whenever I go into the countryside.

"If I ran off for good there'd be no one around here to round up food for the Chinese, and these young men have to eat in order to fight. So—I'm sticking."

Congress Seeks Submarine Data

Information on Atlantic Campaign Is Asked

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The navy anti-submarine campaign in the Atlantic came under the scrutiny of congress today and Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) said the senate naval affairs committee probably would call Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, for an inquiry into effectiveness of counter measures.

Walsh told reporters the committee had received many requests to look into the organization of surface and air patrols which have been combatting the Axis undersea marauders which have sunk some 70 merchant vessels since they invaded coastal and Caribbean waters after the United States declaration of war.

"I think committee members want to be satisfied that everything possible is being done to eliminate this menace," Walsh said. "If Admiral King can spare the time from his duties, I would like to have him come before the committee and tell us confidentially what is being done."

Walsh said that the committee's move to inquire into the counter-submarine campaign should not be looked upon as presaging criticism of navy efforts thus far.

The committee was only interested, he said, in learning if the patrol forces were doing their job as efficiently as possible. He indicated, however, that if the group found any reason for complaint on that score, members would not hesitate to voice it.

The army and navy announced jointly last week the coordination of defense forces on the Atlantic coast, the practical effect of which would be to give the navy command over army patrol planes used in hunting the coastal waters for lurking submarines.

Sayre Releases Names Of 1,500 in Manila

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Francis B. Sayre, high commissioner to the Philippines, today released the names of more than 1,500 persons, mostly Americans, interned in Manila and said that the International Red Cross was attempting to secure the appointment of a Swiss citizen to act as its representative there.

Information obtained by such a representative, he explained, would be forwarded to the next of kin by the information bureau of the army provost marshal general's office which maintains direct cable connections with the International Red Cross at Geneva.

Sayre said the list of persons interned by the Japanese in Manila could not be guaranteed as to accuracy and that it did not contain the names of all the Americans who were there at the outbreak of the war. He added that he had no information concerning persons not on the list.

The high commissioner said that it was "difficult and dangerous" to attempt to communicate with Americans in Manila, pointing out that persons in occupied areas discovered to be in touch with American authorities would be liable to heavy Japanese penalties.

Seven Are Killed In Arms Explosion

Only Two Are Identified at Bridgeport; Nail Cause of Blast

Bridgeport, Conn., March 30 (AP)—The broken bodies of seven persons missing in a terrific explosion at the huge Remington Arms Company munitions plant here were recovered today by grim-faced searchers who said that only two of the victims, both women, had been identified.

Operations in the packing area shattered by the blast Saturday, which injured 80 other persons, 10 of them sufficiently to require hospitalization, were resumed today amid an atmosphere of sadness.

The identified dead were Mrs. Ellen Hanson Potts, 39, mother of a small daughter, and Miss Catherine R. Butler, 52, sister of a fireman, who had been employed at the plant 19 years.

Company officials said in a formal statement that a nail hammered into a box of catridge primers was to blame for the terrific blast that demolished a two-story packing house containing a large store of rim-fire and other ammunition.

The sabotage theory was discounted yesterday by an official company statement which said that officials were "convinced" that the blast originated in the packing section of the building where military ammunition primers were being boxed.

"These primers," the statement said, "are more sensitive than ordinary ammunition and despite extra precautions taken in their packing, it was believed that a nail being driven into one of the boxes was deflected, pierced the metal lining and initiated the explosion. Steps have been taken to prevent a recurrence."

Operations in the section of the plant where the packing building stood were resumed today, and the company said that property damage was slight.

Treasury Suggests Liberalized Tax Expense Allowance

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The treasury proposed today three liberalizations of the present family expense deductions in computing individual income taxes.

Randolph Paul, tax adviser to Secretary Morgenthau, told the House ways and means committee that "in view of the increases in tax rates which the present situation necessitated" these changes would be desirable:

"1. Medical expenses—a deduction should be allowed for extraordinary medical expenses that are in excess of a specified percentage of the family's net income. The amount allowed under such a deduction should, however, be limited to some specified maximum amount.

"2. Credit for dependent children—the credit for dependent children should be revised to allow credit for children between the ages of 18 and 21 who are in attendance at school.

"3. Additional credit where wife earns income—where the wife works outside the home, additional household expenses usually are incurred which are not present where the wife is able to devote her full time to the maintenance of teh home. For this reason, it is suggested that an additional credit be provided as follows: There should be allowed as a credit against the tax upon the family an amount equal to 10 per cent of the wife's earnings. Such credit, however, should not exceed $100. A similar credit should be allowed where a person occupying the status of head of the family, such as a widow, works."

Special Service For Good Friday Slated for City

The annual Good Friday service, in which nine churches will participate, will be held on Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in Trinity Methodist Church. The Rev. Fred L. Deming, pastor of the Methodist Church, will preside; the Scripture will be read by the Rev. John A. Wright of the Wurts Street Baptist Church who will also lead in prayer.

The following pastors will speak on the seven words from the Cross as follows:

First word, the Rev. D. Linton Doherty.

Volunteers Help In Health Drive

Women Seek to Determine Number Immunized

For the past month the city's health department has been assisted by a group of women who volunteered to make a survey of the city for the purpose of determining the names of children in the city who have not been immunized against diphtheria and smallpox.

Parents of these children have been urged to have their children immunized at once. Dr. L. S. Sanford, health officer, said today that diphtheria and smallpox can be prevented and the diseases wiped out, but only if immunization work is kept up to the birth rate.

At present 52 per cent of the children of Kingston under the age of five years have been protected against diphtheria. This percentage, said Dr. Sanford, should be much higher.

Dr. Sanford called attention to the fact that there is a free diphtheria and smallpox prevention clinic held every Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock in the rooms of the health board at the city hall.

Dr. Sanford said that the immunization of all children in the city can not be carried out unless the parents co-operate by bringing their children to these free clinics.

New York, March 30 (AP)—Stock market leaders moved upward today on one of the smallest volumes since last May.

Prices, a bit mixed at the start, soon began to harden and, at the best, advances ranged from fractions to a point. There were scattered exceptions and, near the final hour, numerous pivotals were unchanged. Transfers were at the rate of about 250,000 shares.

Few buying incentives were discovered in the war news or developments at Washington but the thought revived that the list had been well liquidated and was in position to rally briskly if given a half-way opportunity.

Bonds and commodities were irregularly higher.

In the stock division, Zenith Radio edged into new high ground for the year. Early support was accorded Douglas Aircraft, Bethlehem, American Telephone, N. Y. Central, Anaconda, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, American Can, General Electric and Deere.

WAR JEWELRY

The jewelry world has added new war words to its vocabulary. An "eternity ring" is a circlet of diamonds placed on the bride's finger after the honeymoon, on departure of her soldier-husband. It is worn as a guard for the engagement ring and wedding band.

Sweetheart symbols are jeweled gifts in the form of hearts, lockets, love-knots, doves, or sentimental flowers. "Remembrance rings" are usually in symbolic design such as the flag or victory-V. It is given to mothers or sisters by departing service men and is worn on the middle or pinkie finger of the right hand. Service insignia are pin or clip replicas of the insignia he is wearing.

Mrs. Johnston, 92, Dies; in Charge Of Local Cemetery

Mrs. Margaret A. Weir Johnston, superintendent of Montrepose cemetery since the death of her husband, John J. Johnston, in 1914, died in her home, 75 Montrepose avenue, at an early hour this morning in her 92nd year. Mrs. Johnston had been confined to her home for many months by illness.

Mrs. Johnston was born in Kingston on October 29, 1850 and had resided here all her life.

Her husband for many years served as superintendent of Montrepose cemetery, and at his death in 1914, his wife, who had assisted her husband in the management of the cemetery affairs, was appointed superintendent, a position she had since held.

Mrs. Johnston during the many years she had resided in Kingston and had served as superintendent of the cemetery became widely and favorably known. For many years she had been an active member of Trinity Methodist Church on Wurts street.

When Kingston Chapter, No. 155, Order of the Eastern Star, was instituted, Mrs. Johnston became a charter member of that order, and was very active in Eastern Star circles until failing health confined her to her home.

Mrs. Johnston is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Grace M. Hampton and Miss Mary E. Johnston at home, and two sons, John J. Johnston at home and Benjamin C. Johnston of Fall River, Mass.

Owing to severe illness in the family the funeral services will be held privately. Friends wishing to do so may call at the late home on Tuesday between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Burial will be in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

Ministers Strike Drunken Driving

Ministers' Association Sees Menace, Asks Courts Act Stringently

More stringent enforcement of the law against drunken driving is urged in a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the Kingston Ministerial Association.

The resolution points out that inasmuch as drunken driving appears to be on the increase and is a serious menace "to public safety on street and highway," some action should be taken.

Leniency on the part of the courts seem to favor the lawbreaker over the safety and well being of our people and is "being evidenced by the fact that minimum fines are being assessed in nearly every case," the resolution continues.

It racalls also "an incident of a few months ago in which a second offender was allowed to plead guilty to a secondary charge in order to avoid a severe penalty which otherwise would have been inflicted."

The resolution asks that the Kingston Ministerial Association respectfully request the courts "to exercise more stringency towards those who hazard public safety by operating motor cars while intoxicated."

Fire to 'Finish' Model Airplane Catches on House

Sunday morning about 11:30 o'clock Donald Kelly, 9, of 23 Janet street, decided to destroy his model airplane by setting it on fire, according to the fire department. In doing so the blazing model was too close to the house and ignited the corner of the building. The fire spread up the partition to the porch on the second floor of the house. The prompt response of the fire department soon had the flames under control with but slight smoke damage to the interior of the house.

The house is owned by Mrs. E. G. Kelly, who occupies but part of the house, and the other half is occupied by Delmar Kelly.

The fire department also responded to calls to extinguish grass fires in the city. One was in the rear of 96 Hurley avenue, another at 1:55 o'clock for a grass fire near Lawton Park which set fire to a frame garage on the property of the Pleasant View House on the Boulevard, causing slight damage.

The department was also called at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning for a fire in a metal container in the rear of 592 Broadway, and at 6:30 o'clock that evening for a grass fire on Golden Hill, off Glen street.

The EASTER BUNNY

It's Easter week...and kiddies know
That somewhere in the land of snow
The Easter Bunny hops away
To be with them...on Easter Day.

He'll fill the house while they're in bed
With tiny eggs of blue and red;
Behind the tables, doors and chairs
He'll hide his many-colored wares.

And just to thrill their happy hearts
He brings them yellow Easter carts;
With chicks and ducks that try in vain
To shed their coats of cellophane.

And when the Bunny's work is through
He'll leave the grown-ups happy, too...
With every childish laugh that's born
Our hearts will sing...on Easter morn.

College Dean Lists Needs for Future

With a vision on the type of character young women of the reconstruction period will need, Miss Jane Louise Jones, dean of women at St. Lawrence University, spoke of "The Road for the Victory Girl," at the social held by the College Women's Club, Saturday afternoon. Guests of the club were the junior and senior high school girls who are interested in attending college.

Miss Jones in listing some of the virtues of the victory girl said that she must be stoical, courageous, and a worker. There will be a need for intelligent leadership and girls today must get as much education and training as is possible. Within a few years, women will be working even harder and more than now away from home. The top positions will demand people who have perspective, a knowledge of history, psychology, sociology, and a thorough general education.

She told the girls not to feel as though they had failed at some point, if they had not yet made up their mind what to be. She urged them to experiment at college for a year and then decide.

Advantages of college life were noted as learning to associate and work with other people, to become a leader, to understand others, and to determine the difference in interests and tastes. Also at college girls are taught to be thrifty and to manage their lives.

Miss Jones believes that character is greater than possessions and the development of it is important. Nature has so made human beings that they can be trained and thus "heredity counts the least, and character building counts the most."

Following the talk the hostesses served refreshments. The girls, who numbered about 25, gathered around Miss Jones and had an informal chat with her concerning college life.

The refreshment table was decorated with yellow taper candles and a bowl of mixed flowers in yellow and lavender shades. The hostess committee was Mrs. Stanley Dempsey, chairman; Mrs. Clarence L. Dumm, Mrs. David DuBois, Mrs. James Devine, Miss Flora Davison, Mrs. Bertha Denniston, Miss Nellie Davenport, Mrs. Kenneth Davenport, Mrs. Theron Culver, Mrs. Frederick Coombs, Mrs. Edward Cloonan.

Seder Service Ushers In Passover Holiday

Memories of freedom won after years of slavery in Egypt will bring hope to Jews throughout the saddened world as they recite the Seder Service which ushers in the holiday of the Passover on the evening of April 1.

Passover, which commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from the oppression of the Pharaohs and their entrance into the Promised Land as a religious people, is the oldest holiday in the Jewish calendar. Originating as a spring festival it developed a religious significance during the days of the Temple and has become an occasion of thanksgiving for the organization of the tribes of Israel into one people, worshipping One God.

When Jerusalem was the religious center of Judaism the Passover holiday was celebrated in the Temple. It was one of the three great pilgrim festivals, and people came from all parts of Palestine to share in the holiday which marked the sowing of the crops. Since the destruction of the Temple Passover has become a home festival.

At the home service, which is known as the Seder, and which is rich in symbols, the story of the deliverance from slavery under the leadership of Moses is read each year. The ritual, or Haggadah, from which the service is read is often beautifully illustrated.

Reform Jews celebrate the holiday for seven days. Synagogue services are held on the first and seventh days. Orthodox Jews celebrate it for eight days and hold services also on the second and eighth days.

The eating of unleavened bread, or Matsos, connected with the festival, is a symbol of the haste with which the Jews left Egypt. According to tradition there was no time to wait for the bread-dough to rise.

There are also special dishes which symbolize the hardships of the Children of Israel while in Egypt. However because of the happy ending to the suffering in Egypt and because of its connection with spring and the release of nature from winter's bondage, Passover retains its joyous character and is celebrated with gladness and song, as a festival of freedom and redemption under the divine guidance. PRESTO CHANGE-O

Spring always means gay young prints. This year it means that, plus flannel coats lined in the same material as the dress. A novel idea in lining the coat is to finish it so its reversible. Then when your mood calls for an all-print ensemble, simply turn the coat inside out.

DAILY MENUS

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Toning Up With Salad

Take your spring tonic the salad way.

Menu for Dinner
(Serving 3 or 4)

Chilled Tomato Juice
Creamed Eggs on Buttered Noodles
Savory Spinach
Wholewheat Bread Apple Butter
Spring Tonic Salad
Sliced Oranges Fig Crispies
Coffee (Adults) Milk (Children)

Spring Tonic Salad

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup boiling water
½ cup chopped cabbage
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon finely minced onion
2/3 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons salad dressing

Soak gelatin 5 minutes in pineapple juice, add lemon juice and water. Stir until dissolved. Cool and add rest of ingredients. Pour into mold, chill until firm.

Fig Crispies
(Require little sugar)

2/3 fat
½ cup dark brown sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cream
1 cup chopped figs
½ cup chopped prunes (dried)
1/3 cup nuts
3 cups uncooked oatmeal
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon soda

Cream fat and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Pour in rest of ingredients and shape into 2 inch roll. Wrap in waxed paper and chill several hours. Cut off thin slices. Bake 8 minutes on greased baking sheet in moderate oven.

Season carrot strips by soaking in cold water with a slice of onion. Sprinkle the crisp strips with salt just before they are served.

Bananas dipped in strained honey, lightly sprinkled with lemon juice and a little salt and baked 15 minutes in a moderate oven make delicious side-partners for broiled fish steaks or fillets, chops or chicken.

Job Seeker Could Teach Self Typing

Exercise For "Touch" System

"Typists wanted, fast, experienced....Typists wanted, accurate, fast....Touch typists wanted..."

Yes, there are typing jobs—IF you know the quick, accurate touch system. Bosses aren't hiring slow-as-molasses, one-finger typists!

Why not learn touch typing at home with our instruction booklet? A keyboard chart shows how to place your fingers on the eight "guide keys"—j, a, k, s, l, d, f and semi-colon.

Then, as in the exercise pictured, you practice striking these keys. By moving only one finger at a time, striking sharply and lightly, you can work smoothly, evenly and tirelessly—as professional typists do.

Other exercises get you used to the other keys; each finger has its own section on the keyboard. BUT—no matter what key you type, the finger must immediately return to its guide key.

This keeps you from popping all over the keyboard, willy-nilly, making mistakes.

Prepare for a job with the aid of our 32-page typing booklet. Teaches touch typing with charts, exercises, speed drills. Gives rules for typing English; business, social and official letters.

Send 10 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for your copy of "Teach Yourself Touch Typewritin" to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Good Taste Today

Widow's and Married Son's Initials, Being Identical, Create Confusion.

The confusion caused by the names of the widow of John Jones and the wife of the son of the same name, has been noted in this column many times. But the following situation is one that I can't remember ever having heard before. The confusion is that of a widow's own initials being the same as those of her son who was not named for his father. The son's wife writes:

"We live in the same apartment building as my mother-in-law, who instead of continuing to call herself Mrs. Henry Brown, is calling herself Mrs. Alice May Brown. My husband's name is Arthur Morton Brown. Letters to her and to me are both addressed 'Mrs. A. M. Brown.' I can distinguish a certain number as being for her, but mistakes are frequent. She says the postman is to blame and that letters addressed to Mrs. A. M. Brown belong in her box. This is not true and half of my mail is opened first by her. Can you advise me how to avoid this confusion?"

The answer to this is that correctly she should call herself Mrs. Henry Brown, and theoretically you should expect people to address you as Mrs. Arthur Morton Brown in full! But since she does not, and most people won't the only answer that suggests itself is a probably impractical one that you move to another address.

No Excuse for Gossip

Dear Mrs. Post: Can people find anything unpleasant to say if I accept the invitation of a young man to spend several weeks with his family? He can't get a furlough long enough to come here to visit me and he thought if I came on he could see both his family and me. We are not engaged and can't be yet because everything is too uncertain.

Answer: If his family—meaning his mother—has written a spontaneously friendly letter, your accepting such an invitation could hardly be criticized by Mrs. Grundy herself. On the other hand, if his mother does not know you and the letter is from a sister who does not know you either, and she is writing only because her brother has asked her to do so, I think your going might make a very unfortunate impression upon his family, and even risk spoiling your future happiness. All of this means merely that there must be no doubt about the genuineness of their welcome.

So many requests have been made for copies of my article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the man), that I have had it printed as a leaflet and will be very glad to send it to anyone who sends me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Twin Sisters, 90, Die In New York Apartment

New York, March 30 (AP)—So enfeebled by age they could not walk a few steps from their bedroom to their well-stocked kitchen for food, two 90-year-old twin sisters were together in death today as they had been all their lives.

The Misses Theresa and Kate Barton, known simply as "the little old ladies" to their Greenwich Village neighbors, died within five hours of each other last night.

Although they lived well on pensions from the Western Union Telegraph Company and dressed well—albeit in the style of a bygone era—they literally starved to death through their helplessness.

They were found by a rental agent of the building where they lived after their mail had accumulated for several days.

Over 220,000 sheepskins were shipped from New Zealand to the United States in a recent month.

UNDER TWO FLAGS

The military affairs of the United States and Canada, which carry good-neighboring to an unusual extreme, are now somewhat tangled. The governments seem to manage all right, but there are individual complications. When we entered the war, some 15,000 "Yanks" had enlisted in the Canadian army. Some of these boys lost their citizenship by taking an oath of allegiance to Canada. Others enlisted in branches of the service where they did not lose citizenship, but merely promised obedience to the Canadian authorities for the duration of the war and the customary few months thereafter.

Now that their own country has entered the same war, many of them would like to return. The Canadian government will help in such repatriation.

It is announced that Americans in Canadian service may apply for transfer to the States after April 1. Citizenship will be regained, apparently, by the simple process of transferring to the service of the United States. They will keep the same rank they had had in Canada if they pass the physical requirements of the United States Army. Americans in the Royal Canadian Air Force may apply for service in our Army, Navy or Marine air services.

It is remarkable how well the citizens of these two democracies seem to mesh, so to speak, in work and play, in peace and war. In the present situation they might almost be regarded as interchangeable parts in a joint war and a common way of life.

HIGHEST PEAK

The United States is the greatest country in the world. We always knew that, and we knew it had the most remarkable scenery. But we didn't know that we had the world's highest mountain.

In school it was taught that that honor was held by Mount Everest on the border of India, which is 29,141 feet high. Now it seems that Everest must yield to Mauna Kea in Hawaii, which is 13,825 feet high. Yes, you read that right, but it is not quite so simple. There is more to Mauna Kea than you see. The 13,825 feet are merely what is above sea level. According to James R. Ullman, historian of mountaineering, in his new book, "High Conquest," Mauna Kea actually starts from the ocean floor, 18,000 feet further down. This gives Mauna Kea a total height of over 31,000 feet, which makes it easily first.

Not everyone would agree with this method of reckoning. But it starts one thinking about the American character. We like to brag about our belongings, whether new cars or mountain peaks. But there might be a real resemblance to Mauna Kea, after all. The American character may not appear to be so much, viewed on the surface, but its roots go deep, and there may be more to its height than meets the casual eye.

LOTS OF SOAP

No shortage of soap is expected to be found in this country. Housewives need not be tempted to pile shelves high with little bars against emergency. There will be lots and lots of soap—and for a curious reason. In modern soap-making glycerine is a by-product, and glycerine is one of the most important factors in producing explosives.

Fine and luxurious soaps, made from imported oils, may have to go for a time. But there will be plenty of good, plain American soap, enough for all possible toilet, kitchen and laundry uses.

Junior is to have no luck escaping the nightly scrub-up. And even MacArthur's little boy had to have his hair shampooed and cut. Hard world!

STEAK AND TAROS?

How will you have your dasheens? Boiled, mashed or home fried? In Florida they would know what you were talking about, but probably not elsewhere in the country.

The dasheen is the new rival to the potato, and has for some time been known to travelers abroad as the taro. Common in the Pacific islands, the Mediterranean countries and parts of Latin America, it is especially common in Hawaii, where they have no less than 69 varieties. Now the Department of Agriculture is encouraging its development, partly, no doubt, in case there should be a potato shortage. But it is supposed to be an improvement on our old friend, being nourishing, economical and less starchy than the white potato. Also, from two to four times as many taros as potatoes will grow on the same amount of soil.

So the good old spud faces competition from a younger rival. The taro has one recommendation that will go over big with army K.P.'s: it doesn't have to be peeled.

ON ME ALONE

Vice-President Wallace has just uttered a slogan which can hardly be improved upon. It was found on the flyleaf of the diary left by Martin Treptow, an Iowa boy who was killed at Chateau-Thierry in 1918. It runs:

"America must win this war. Therefore I will work, I will save, I will sacrifice, I will endure, I will fight cheerfully and do my utmost, as if the issue of the whole struggle depended on me alone."

Hitler's career was foreseen by the great Greek philosopher Plato. He said: "When the tyrant has disposed of foreign enemies by conquest or treaty and there is nothing to fear from them, then he always stirs up some war or other in order that the people may require a leader."

MENTAL CASES ENTERING ARMY

During the last war, a medical officer, examining a recruit, reminded him that as he had had attacks of bronchitis, he would hardly be fit for overseas. The chest was clear but the physician pointed out that under stress and bad weather conditions the bronchitis might return and he would be a liability to the country. He was of a superior type of individual and pleaded so hard that the medical officer talked the matter over with the captain of the unit he was joining. As it was thought that the outdoor life might "toughen" him, it was agreed to accept him as there was nothing against him but the 'history' of the attacks.

The outdoor life at camp agreed with him, he had not attacks of bronchitis, and gained fifteen pounds—the heaviest he had ever been. However, arriving in England the damp climate caused an acute attack of bronchitis and pneumonia and he had to be invalided home without going to France.

Today every recruit has an X-ray film made of his chest before he receives the rest of his examination. Other tests are also made so that from the physical standpoint, the chances of many men becoming pensioners is not large.

What about the mental condition of recruits? How can it be known how recruits will behave under the shock, danger, noise and surroundings of war?

This is going to be a difficult matter for the psychiatrist or mental specialist attached to the board of medical examiners. Thus Dr. Lauren H. Smith, Physician-in-Chief, Department for Mental and Nervous Diseases, Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, says that the mental specialist ordinarily sees fully developed mental cases; we want him to use his skill to exclude, as far as possible, all those people who would be seriously damaged in their capacity for useful living by the circumstances of war. Also to exclude all those who, because of personal peculiarities, would break down in the service or who would have an unfavorable effect upon discipline and morale.

However, as recruits are examined first at their own villages, towns or cities, the local physician is able to give information as to how the recruit conducts himself in the community and can advise whether the recruit is suitable for overseas or home service only, from the mental and emotional standpoint. Doubtful cases can always be sent on to the Medical Advisory Board.

Neurosis

Do you feel convinced that you have some ailments although medical tests do not reveal it? Sometimes feel 'compelled' to do foolish things? Send today for Dr. Barton's interesting booklet entitled 'Neurosis' (No. 104), which explains how such conditions are handled. Enclose ten cents and a three-cent stamp with your request and send it to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman.

A substantial contribution toward the $45,000 American Red Cross War Fund to be raised by the Ulster County Committee will help keep the fighting men, healthy, happy and efficient.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

WDBZ, Kingston's Boy Scout radio station, with broadcasting studios on the third floor of the city hall, officially went on the air on Thursday evening, December 11, 1924, with Mayor Morris Block delivering the address of the evening. This was Kingston's first radio station, and it remained in operation until the city hall, several years later, was gutted by fire.

Chief Executive Henry Nesslage of the Ulster County Boy Scouts, was the official announcer, on the opening program which consisted of musical selections by the Boy Scouts orchestra of Saugerties; solos by Miss Mildred Messinger and George Schilling of this city; piano and violin numbers by Kendall F. Zeliff and Genevieve Mains, duets by the Lehr brothers, and saxophone solos by Bert Davis.

Older readers will recall the many fine programs placed on the air by the Boy Scout station in those days, 18 years ago, when radios were not as many in number as they are today, nor were they of the fine quality now found in the many makes of radio that can be bought in the city.

One of the most active men in the business world in Kingston in the years during the early 1900's and through the years of the first World War, was Wesley D. Hale, 73, who died in his home, 257 Broadway, on November 29, 1924. Mr. Hale was a member of the firm of McMillan & Hale, with store located on the Strand at Hasbrouck avenue.

Mr. Hale was also active in Trinity Methodist Church on Wurts street, serving as a member of the board of trustees, and for 18 years as superintendent of the Sunday school. He was also active in local Masonic circles and had been a member of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, for more than half a century.

I also recall that Carl Fuchsle won the cross country run staged on Thanksgiving Day morning in 1924, by the local Y. M. C. A.

John Scanlon finished second with Henry Bittner in third place.

The race had been arranged by Al Buley, who was serving as physical director at the "Y" that year.

Twenty-seven started in the race and 22 finished the race.

The judges, as I recall them were Chet Dolson, Wesley Thompson, Loughran Smith, Rodney Stock, Louis Whitney, Chet Hall, Ted Young and Bob Murray.

MODENA

Modena, March 30—Mrs. Wilbur Williams will act as hostess to the next meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Modena Methodist Church, to be held in the lecture room of the church Thursday afternoon, April 2. If not held in the church, the meeting will be in the Memorial Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coey of Newark, N. J., visited Mr. and Mrs. Hector Avery and daughter, Bernice, during the past week.

Local students participating in the physical education demonstration given in the auditorium of the Wallkill Central School Friday evening under the direction of Coach Robert Minnerley and Mildred Caldwell, were as follows: Elmer Corwin, Jr., Richard Stewart, Robert Grigg, Lawrence Andersen, Arthur Kaehler, Beatrice Brown, Eleanor Andersen, Gloria Corwin, Lucille Doolittle.

Mrs. Joseph Dragotta of New Paltz, Miss Dorothy Bernard of Springtown were in this section Friday.

Production Line Brings Good News to Nation, Regarding Aircraft Motors

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 30—There's good news from the production line. Aircraft engines are now rolling out in great quantities from plants that never made an aircraft engine before last year. The big job of creating supplementary facilities envisioned by William S. Knudsen and his staff in the summer of 1940 just after the fall of France has reached a point of consummation that is truly sensational.

The great question 18 months ago was whether to expand existing aircraft engine plants or build new ones under automobile company management. But the auto managers had never built aircraft engines. They had no engineers or designers familiar with that type of machine. They were mechanically minded but they just didn't know aircraft. The country had been crying for "conversion" of the auto industry and didn't know that you can't convert automobile tools into aircraft tools. Some can be used but it's an altogether different problem.

Who then could make aircraft engines? The government turned to Pratt and Whitney and to Curtiss-Wright. They had the "know-how." They had the patents. They had been shipping aircraft engines for a couple decades to many foreign governments. But how would Pratt and Whitney and Curtiss-Wright feel about teaching some of the auto companies to make aircraft engines? With what spirit would they approach a task that meant building up competitors for themselves for post-war days? And what kind of cooperation could be expected?

While the country was talking about "conversion" of auto plants and while automobiles were still being made, the task of aircraft engine production was started. Though there are some other war weapons that might have used the materials absorbed by 1941 auto production, the fact is that this had little to do with the making of aircraft engines. The job was one of primary instruction and plant building.

Now comes the tale of achievement which is unparalleled in the annals of American industry. The Ford Motor Car Company got its go-ahead signal in August 1940. In September it started the plant, finishing in May, 1941. Engines began rolling out in July 1941 and this month the production compares well with what the old line aircraft engine makers did in some of their pre-war years.

Buick did an even more remarkable job. They got the decision to go ahead in October, 1940. They started their plant in March, 1941, and were scheduled to ship their first engines in March 1942 but they were about two months ahead of schedule in getting out their first engine in December, 1941. Buick is now in quantity production and this month is making engines at a rate that was not expected to be reached till January, 1943.

This phenomenal result cannot be adequately described in print because details as to exact quantities cannot as yet be disclosed. But here too the production of Buick can be started to be equal to or better than the monthly rate at which the companies whose business it was to make aircraft engines were producing in pre-war years.

But that's only part of the story. How were Buick and Ford taught the making of aircraft engines in such a short time? Pratt & Whitney for instance sent instructors to the two newcomers in the business. The auto men were willing and eager pupils. An average of 50 top flight executives Pratt & Whitney spent their time every day for several months training the new makers of aircraft engines, passing on the experience and accumulated know-how of 20 years.

Ford and Buick are not making the same kind of engines and the jobs are somewhat different in many respects but the fact remains that both were ahead of schedule in getting their first engines produced and Buick is eight months ahead of schedule in quantity production.

And all this happened while both Pratt & Whitney and Curtiss-Wright expanded their own existing facilities to such a point that it is believed these two companies alone are making more aircraft engines today than all of the factories of the Axis countries combined. Nor is there an end yet to expansion not only of the primary facilities of the two big pioneers but of the auto makers plants so that if the war lasts through 1943 or 1944, the United States will have its standardized production of aircraft engines well along. This means that the two big pioneers in the engine business then can concentrate the attention of their designers and engineers to the improvements that are found to become necessary in meeting the combat requirements of our flying fortresses and fighter planes.

State Income Tax

Albany, March 30 — Interest charges may be a headache 11 months of the year, but they serve some purpose when income tax time rolls around. They are one of those items which are allowed as deductions in determining your taxable net income under New York state's income tax law.

Here are some of the others:

All ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in the production of taxable income may be deducted in computing taxable net income. Such expenses would include rent on business property, as well as salaries, wages and commissions paid to employes, and other similar costs.

In some cases, a taxpayer who does not himself conduct a business, but whose income is based on a salary or commissions, may incur certain necessary expenses in the course of earning his income. The cost of operation of an automobile might be such an expenditure and would in such cases be deductible to the extent that the expense is necessary and is directly connected with earning the taxpayer's income. However, the cost of transportation from home to office is not deductible.

Deductible interest charges would include that on mortgages, whether or not such charges are on a presonal residence. Bad debts must be completely substantiated if a deduction is to be allowed. Proof is required by the department that the debt was ascertained to be worthless and charged off during the taxable year. Bad debt deductions should be claimed by the taxpayer as soon as he is convinced a debt is not collectible, as no deduction of this type is allowed for worthless debts of long standing.

These general rules regarding deductions for bad debts do not apply to transactions involving debts secured by a lien on real property or a leasehold, whereby the debtor acquires the property in full or partial satisfaction of his claim.

No deduction from ordinary gross income may be made for losses sustained on the sale or exchange of capital assets, or by reason of securities becoming worthless. Such losses may be deducted only from capital gains realized by the taxpayer.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—The other night I sat across the table from a man who is considered one of the great news editors of these turbulent times.

"Aside from the big battles on this front or that," he said, "the biggest stories of this month and probably the next and the next are those which concern extravagances, waste and chiseling on the part of labor, management and government."

Why? Because letters, telegrams and editorials from you and you have got congress (a few months away from election in the whole House and part of the Senate) in a fine state of jitters.

No one who has been around Congress very long is going to be too much perturbed about a deluge of mail on any specific issue. It's easy to arouse the pressure groups without arousing the real voters in ordinary times. A lobby for some cause gets het up about some pending legislation. The word goes back down the line until it reaches the little people—and they write their Congressmen.

Ordinarily the Congressmen thumb through this mail, answer it (just for fear it might be a voter), make some notation of it in the Congressional Record, and unless it assumes bandwagon proportions, go on about their business.

This time it's different. In the first place, it can't be determined that any of the mail demanding economies, an end to boondoggling, or a punishment—through new laws—of labor and management who step out of the war production line, is coming from any of the old organized pressure groups.

One flood of letters has come from the south and southwest and this sectional source has caused some Congressmen to demand an investigation. But I have seen scores from other areas. If Texas and Oklahoma and a few other states have been most vociferous in their demands for a clean-up of the labor-management squabbles and the wage and hour problems, the same can't be said for the complaints against the Office of Civilian Defense and the Office of Government Reports; the NYA, the CCC; and congressional pensions, to mention just a few.

Important enough to be included in the Congressional Record, with demands from their recipients that the Truman committee investigate, are such letters as (1) From a big defense contract holder in Connecticut that he is receiving so many questionnaires from sundry defense and government agencies that it takes 50 per cent of his time to answer them; (2) From a well known columnist that near Tuscon Ariz., millions of board feet of scrap lumber, owned by the government, had been burned up on government agents' orders, while hundreds of citizens nearby scoured the countryside for mesquite and other brush to combat their shortage of fuel and keep them from freezing to death.

It has been a long time since this country was aroused to such a consistent fit of writing its Congressmen. That fact and the nearness of election has a lot of them jumping when the postman only rings once.

Exam Made Easy

New Orleans—Students at Loyola University of the south believe they have found the ideal examination. Given a lone test question in the philosophy class by the Rev. R. Jerome Mullin, S. J., they were told to use textbooks and notes for reference. Then they were told to use the library also. "Don't turn in the papers for two days," concluded Father Mullin.

26 AGAINST THE AXIS: 25

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—A school for pilots established by Henry the Navigator, great Portuguese pioneer, made possible the discovery of Cape of Good Hope in 1487. First used by the Dutch as a convenient stop for fresh water and fresh meat for India-bound traders, in 1648 the ship-wrecked crew of the Haarlem thrived there so well while waiting five months to be rescued, that they prevailed upon the Dutch to colonize the southern tip of Africa. The English came 150 years later, seized the cape and after the Napoleonic war ended, purchased the Cape and Dutch Guiana for 16 million pounds. The Dutch settlers who had moved north from the cape to the Vaal, Orange Free State and Natal to get room for their great cattle herds, moved further out; irked by British government they resisted encroachment and in the middle 19th century the long Boer Wars started. Gold had been mined but in 1867 discovery of the diamond fields near the Orange River started South Africa's prosperity; it has reached a point today where gold and diamond mines are air conditioned for improved working conditions. Nearly 35 per cent of the world's gold supply comes from this richest gold and diamond country in the world. In 1938 the union's mines produced 1,238,306 carats of diamonds. In 1910 Transvaal, Cape of Good Hope, Orange Free State and Natal formed the Union of South Africa, with a parliamentary government, elected provincial councils in each state. South West Africa, former German colony, is administered by the Union under a League of Nations mandate. Prime Minister General Smuts now governs a nation of 10 million population, guarding an important point in the United Nations' lifelines to India, Australia and Russia.

Fur Coats?—Never

Chicago — Two young fashion school students defied two bandits and saved their fur coats.

Miss Dorothy Buchanan, 27, and Miss Verna Simonton, 24, accosted by two men, one of them armed, as they left the car of a friend, gave up $25 and $17 respectively. But when the men ordered them to surrender their coats, the women defiantly walked past them into the building where Miss Buchanan lives.

To Collect Articles

Highland, March 30—On April 1 from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon the committee for war relief of the Highland Council of Church Women will collect articles for bombed British civilians, papers and rags to be sold for food for Chinese children and tinfoil and aluminum bottle caps to be sold to furnish kits for American soldiers. St. Augustine's parish has charge of the month of April with Mrs. Harvey Slater, Mrs. Edward Perkins and Mrs. Herman Sandy at the Legion rooms to receive donations and collect.

Members of the war relief committee who visited Bundles for America, formerly Bundles for Britain, in Kingston recently, brought back directions for making kit bags for the army and navy, also a suggested list of articles. Mrs. Troy Cook of the committee gave the following directions: Material, strong durable; blue for the navy; khaki for the army, 36 inches wide. To make: Cut lengthwise in strips 12 inches wide and 27 inches long. Fold over; stitch up sides. Turn over top edges one-inch deep to make casing for draw string. Make drawstring just the width of the bag. Suggested contents of kit: Bar of soap, large tube brushless shave cream, bakelite razor, package of five razor blades, styptic pencil, large tube of tooth paste, tooth brush, pocket comb, nail clipper, white handkerchief and pencil. In addition to these articles suitable for either an army or navy man, a soldier requires two pair strong brown shoe laces, brown shoe polish and shoe brush; while a sailor will need two pair of strong black shoe laces, black shoe polish and a whisk broom.

Village Notes

Highland, March 30—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Short and daughters are moving to Torrington, Conn., where Mr. Short is employed.

Highland Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, postponed its observance of charter member night at its regular meeting Tuesday night since Mrs. R. H. Decker had been the first matron and sympathy was extended to her on the death of her husband. Plans were made for the district meeting to be held here on April 14 when representatives of the 11 other lodges in the district will be present with District Deputy Grand Matron Edna Budd of Ellenville and District Grand Lecturer Samuel McCoubrey from Windham. Mrs. Lula Schuble is chairman of arrangements with Mrs. Florence Plass in charge of decorations, assisted by Mrs. Lillian Sheeley. At the close of the meeting a rehearsal of a patriotic degree was held and refreshments were served by a group of members from Marlborough.

Capt. Roy Rathgeb returned to Camp Blanding, Fla., Thursday after a short furlough at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rheal are moving from an apartment in the Schoonmaker house on Linwood avenue to the upper apartment in the Louis Smith house on the Milton road.

Sparks from burning brush set fire to the roof of the bungalow at Hillair Thursday afternoon. Within an hour later the firemen were summoned to Illinois mountian where a grass fire was getting out of bounds.

Mrs. Percy Schoonmaker of Poughkeepsie spent Friday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter.

Dr. Marian Walker has received a fellowship and is in Philadelphia where she is continuing her study of archeology under a grant from the A.A.U.W.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Cotant, Jr., are stopping at Hotel Gracemere in Chiacgo while Mr. Cotant completes some special work needed there.

Miss Jean Seaman is home for her spring vacation from Dean Academy.

Mrs. C. Lorensen is home from St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where she was a patient.

Attending a district meeting of Daughters of America in Poughkeepsie Wednesday evening were Mrs. Harry E. Cotant, Mrs. Louise Sheeley, Mrs. Hazel Palmer, Mrs. Grace Relyea, Mrs. Carrie Atkins, Miss Henrietta Woolsey, Mrs. Cecile Petersen, Mrs. Grace Decker and Mrs. Mamie Wood. All but the latter attended the banquet at the French Pastry Shop previous to the meeting. Sunshine and Moll Pitcher Lodges were hosts for the evening.

Vineyard Rebekah Lodge will hold a card party at the close of the regular meeting April 9. Mrs. Lena Dirk is chairman for tickets and tallies; Miss Marion Simpson, honors; Mrs. Carrie Werner, tables; Victor Ratt, chairs; Mrs. Petersen, Richard Petersen, Mrs. Florence Plass, Mrs. Rachel Rowley, Mrs. Mary Reed, Mrs. Charlotte Salomon, Miss Pearl Scott, Mrs. Louise Sheeley, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schaffert, refreshments.

The trustees of the Presbyterian Church held its monthly meeting Wednesday with Matthew P. Busch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. William Feeter and Miss Eliza Raymond were Thursday evening supper guests of Mrs. Franklin Welker.

Washington Gets Snow Palm Sunday

Three Thousand Men Put to Clearing Snowfall

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Washington dug out today from its heaviest March snowfall of record to count thousands of its trees broken or felled and many power lines disrupted by the unusual weather but no serious accidents were reported.

The snow fell Saturday night and most of yesterday, reaching a general depth of 15 to 18 inches though the weather bureau officially listed the depth as eight inches in downtown sectors. Nearly 3,000 men were put into service by the city and transit companies clearing streets and this morning traffic moved on principal thoroughfares about as normal after being paralyzed most of yesterday.

The storm recalled that of January 1922, when a 28-inch snowfall caused the collapse of Knickerbocker Theatre roof with the death of more than 100 men, women and children in the audience.

LOGISTICS

Strategy is the planning of warfare.

Tactics is the execution of those plans.

Logistics, the third branch of military science, is the supplying of everything necessary to strategy and tactics—in the right amount, at the right place, at the right time.

Now, in total war, we must apply the science of Logistics to all of our activities as a nation—civilian as well as military. WE-ALL are part of the Victory Program.

Our supply lines are literally life lines of the United Nations. Man-power and munition-power are the controlling factors.

Today, Logistics dictates strategy—determines tactics.

Congress has appropriated billions of dollars but it cannot appropriate one single second of time.

Time favors those who appreciate it as the priceless commodity it now is.

In war, when we save time we save lives—and we make our individual contribution to Victory.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

Chapter 19
Battle

JIMMY said sharply, "Stop saying you're sorry, Melissa. You're having a good laugh at my expense, just as everybody else will! Well, go ahead and laugh. I had it coming to me, I suppose, for trying to step out of my own class."

He turned and went swiftly back across the pier to his waiting car. There was a roar of the powerful motor as he trod roughly on the starter, and a scream of roughly meshed gears as the car leaped into motion like a spurred horse.

Dolores, lovely and a little bored as usual, came along the deck just in time to see the car go racing off. She raised here eyebrows a little, laughing. "A lovers' quarrel, eh? Poor Jimmy! What's he done now?"

"Nothing at all. He just brought me a Christmas present I couldn't accept, and he was angry because I wouldn't," answered Melissa promptly.

"Oh?" Dolores' eyebrows went up a little with sharp, frank curiosity, "What sort of a present?"

"A ring—a beautiful one—with a huge diamond. It was stunning," answered Melissa frankly. "But of course I couldn't accept it—"

"Why not? Maybe he meant it for an engagement ring," suggested Dolores in a teasing sort of voice and with an inflection that made Melissa realize she thought nothing of the sort.

Stung, Melissa said sharply, "Well, it just happens that that's what he did want me to do—accept it as an engagement present. But since I refused to marry him, I couldn't very well accept the ring—now could I?"

She started to brush past Dolores, but the blonde girl caught her by the shoulder and jerked her about. Dolores' blue eyes were not frosty now, but blazing with anger, and her face, guiltless of make-up at this hour of the morning, was convulsed with fury.

"So you can't marry Jimmy Marston, you little fool!" she grated through her teeth. "Well, what the blazes do you intend to do, if I may ask? You don't think I'm going to tolerate having you here on the River Queen, do you?"

Melissa answered swiftly. "I can't see that you have anything to do with the matter! After all, it's Randy's boat—"

"Oh, so you can't see what I've got to do with it!" sneered Dolores. "Well, let me tell you something: I've been darned nice to you. I've put up with your spoiling my act night after night, because I thought if you played your cards right you'd marry Jimmy Marston and get the blazes off the boat. But if you think for one moment you're going to go on spoiling my act and getting in my hair—"

She caught her breath and pulled herself erect, struggling for some small measure of self-composure. And Melissa, appalled by the unexpected display of fury, was glad to escape from her.

Halfway to her stateroom she met Alice, who paused a moment to say wisely, "Look, darling—there are two creatures that are mighty dangerous to cross. One's an angry rattlesnake in full possession of all his faculties; the other is Dolores when she's angry. Personally, I'd choose the rattlesnake as safer!"

"And so would I!" Melissa admitted quite frankly. "But what can I do, Alice? She wants me off the show boat—and—well, I've got to have a job—"

"The only person who can give you the grand bounce from the River Queen, pet, is Ace," said Alice firmly. "And since you're the chief attraction of the place I don't think you need to worry about that. So just forget the Dolores—if you can—and keep as much good, fresh ozone between you and her as possible. Them's my words of wisdom."

"And very wise ones," said Melissa gratefully.

Bad Blow

BUT the next day or two proved that it was going to be harder than Melissa had expected. For a few days Dolores brooded, avoiding the others. But on New Year's Eve her venom finally made itself felt.

The place was packed from the top-deck to the auditorium. Hurrying waiters threaded their way through the crowds clustered about the table and the orchestra was working hard.

Some friends of Dolores had called her to their table, and she sat there, laughing, talking, emptying her champagne glass rather more often than the waiter thought wise, though of course he dared not say anything directly to her. But he did manage to slip away from the room long enough to warn Randy.

Just as the lights dimmed preparatory to Melissa's first number of the evening and the round white beam of the spotlight fell upon her as she stood in the center of the small stage, Randy arrived at the doorway leading from the deck to the stage entrance.

The crowded audience hushed its laughter and chatter and turned its attention to the stage. Melissa folded her hands in their silken mitts in front of her and began to sing. Halfway through the number Dolores' ribald laughter rang out sharply and Melissa's voice faltered and broke and for a moment she lost the thread of the music. Quickly the orchestra leader caught her up again, and her voice strengthened and went on. But before she had reached the end of the number Dolores laughed again.

Melissa finished her number rather hurriedly and left the stage. The applause was quick and generous and warmhearted. The orchestra began her second number and she started to sing.

But now Dolores was chattering away, laughing, her companions joining in her mirth until at last the audience was in an uproar, people trying to silence the noisy tableful, insisting that they give Melissa a break and let her sing. Melissa left the stage almost in tears.

The lights went on, the orchestra swung hastily into a dance, two or three couples climbed onto the stage that was now cleared for general dancing. And Randy, his face quite white and set, made his way across the crowded room to where Dolores sat.

The eyes of the audience, curious, accusing, watched him, and so Randy made himself smile lightly and greet the others at the table as he said to Dolores, "I'd like to speak to you, Dolores—alone."

Dolores looked up at him, her eyes bright with malice, her face flushed. "My master's voice!" she told the others, indicating Randy with an impudent little gesture. "When he cracks the whip, I jump. See you people later. Come on, darling, let's go where it's nice and quiet."

"By all means," said Randy grimly, and led her away with him.

Good-bye Dolores

HIS stateroom was his office as well, and it was there that Melissa, answering a summons from him, found him and Dolores. Dolores sat perched on the edge of Randy's desk, smoking a cigarette, laughing, so completely at home that Melissa paused just inside the doorway, looking uncertainly from Randy to Dolores.

"Come in Melissa," said Randy, rising and going to meet her.

"What's she doing here?" demanded Dolores furiously.

"I sent for her," said Randy with a mildness that was belied by the look in his eyes, "so that you could tell her how sorry you are for the way you behaved while she was singing."

"Me apologize to that little—" Dolores couldn't finish.

"Either you apologize for your insolent, unprofessional behavior—or else you leave the River Queen tonight, with a check for two weeks' salary in lieu of notice," said Randy grimly.

Melissa protested wildly. "Oh, no, Randy. It's all right. I didn't mind terribly—honestly I didn't."

"I minded very terribly," said Randy grimly, "from a purely personal, as well as a professional standpoint! I will not have you insulted, either publicly or otherwise; and I will not permit the River Queen to get a reputation for being a place where the performers brawl with each other. You've been making trouble, or trying to, ever since you joined the show boat. Dolores. Do you apologize and promise to behave yourself, or shall I draw you a check for two weeks' salary."

Dolores drew herself erect, and said harshly, "You'd better draw me that check, sweetie, for I'd see her most unpleasantly dead before I'd apologize to her—or do anything to her but claw her eyes out."

The door banged hard behind her, and Melissa said, anxiously, miserably, "Oh, Randy, you shouldn't have let her go—"

Randy, busily writing a check, said grimly, "I should have let her go weeks ago, when she first joined the company and I saw what a disturbing element she was."

"But she's popular—the people come to hear her sing—and she's beautiful—" wailed Melissa.

"People come to hear you sing, Melissa, because you're really got something," Randy told her curtly. "But torch-singers like Dolores are a dime a dozen. And some of them have pleasant dispositions, too!"

Melissa said unsteadily, "But, Randy, she's in love with you."

Randy's jaw set a little and he shook his head.

"No, she's not in love with me," he said grimly. "I happen to be the man more or less in authority around here, and that makes me very appealing to Dolores, who is strictly on the make for the man higher up. Think you can do your numbers now, without any more interruptions?"

"Of course," said Melissa happily, and walked proudly beside him back to the wings where she waited until the stage was cleared. This time when she stepped out to the microphone, the audience cheered her lustily as though to make amends for the spoiling of her first numbers.

Two for None

We never know what happens
And as the day is long
Some things go easy, others hard
And some completely wrong.
Now, here is my true story
It happened the other day
It proves the good old proverb
"Where there's a will there's a way."
A well dressed gent, and a little boy
Came in to a barbershop
The gent said to the barber
Please, shear off our crop.
But as I'm in a hurry
Go, and do your worst
He dropped in to the waiting chair
You can cut my hair—first.
I got some urgent business
And now its nearly noon
And while I'm gone, cut that boy's hair
I will be back, right soon.
One hour went to blazes
The gent did not come back
The boy got quite uneasy
Like sitting on a tack.
The barber said, have courage
Your father, soon be here
The boy said, t'aint my father
The barber's heart felt fear.
The boy began explaining
While playing in the mud
The man said to me, "Come by boy
We both need a haircut.
The barber turned all colors
To him, it was no fun
He swept the hair, much wiser
His thought was, two for none.

W. A. SCHWEINLER,

Why so much fear? Why so many imaginary ills and enemies? Why so many unnecessary clouds of doubt and pessimism on our horizon? Chiefly because we are lacking in faith. We are afraid of everything, afraid of ourselves, afraid of life, and we refuse to face it as strong men and women should face it.

Because people refuse to laugh, refuse to serve, refuse to live life to the full, refuse to pluck the thistle and plant the rose, refuse to have confidence that we are living in a world of inexorable law, where right will win and injustice will be vindicated, they are preparing for a miserable old age. With hatchets of despair they are digging their graves.

The more faith people have the less fear they have. The more fear they have the less faith they have. Those two elements are well nigh incompatible, and both cannot flourish in any life.

It is always darkest just before dawn. Moreover, there is always a dawn. Let that dawn break with all of its glory and splendor. Do not becloud your life with fears and pessimism.

Have faith in somebody and something, and let that faith be the avenue of a nobler, manlier expression of your better self, the self that refuses to be conquered by petty stuff. At least have faith in yourself. If you cannot, who can have faith in you?

Second (to boxer who has just finished a round, and has both eyes closed)—You must go in and finish him this time.

Boxer—I can't see to hit him.

Second—Well, you must hit him from memory.

There was no avoiding it, the hostess was going to sing. The new guest looked at his host in surprise. He said, "I didn't know your wife sang."

The host settled himself deeper into his chair for the ordeal.

"Never heard her before?" he grunted. "Then you've got a great deal to look backward to."

Lady Be Good

Once upon a war-time year
Mrs. Jones, in hastes and fear,
Rushed here to the grocery store,
Bought up sugar, coffee, soap—
Now we'll have to pay—the dope!

Hoarders make for gross inflation;
Lady, for your information,
Don't be piggish, we implore;
When prices rise, you'll rue the day
And all us folks will have to pay.

A newcomer was being examined in court to see whether he would make a useful American citizen.

He answered correctly questions as to the name of the President and the capital of the United States. Then came this one:

Questioner—Could you become president of the United States?

Applicant—No.

Questioner—Why not?

Applicant—Please excuse me. I'm very busy now running an ice cream parlor.

Sue—I know something I won't tell.

Bachelor—Never mind, child. You'll get over that when you're a little older.

To preserve liberty we shall have to give up some of our liberties. This is being done in Britain; it must also be done here.

A Scot applied for a raise, stating he was thinking of getting married. His request was granted.

Manager (Later) — I suppose you've settled down to married life now?

Scot—I'm no' married.

Manager—Well, didn't you apply for a raise because you were thinking of getting married.

Scot—Oh, ay, but I stopped thinking.

Two Youths Held For Alleged Try At Wrecking Train

Two Shavertown youths were arrested Sunday at Shavertown and charged with sabotage under a federal law for an attempt to wreck a train on the Delaware and Northern Railroad Sunday night. The two youths lived in the vicinity and were taken to Binghamton by troopers and federal men where they are being held for federal action.

The two youths are Kenneth Van Steenburgh, 16, and Bernard C. Davis, 17, both of Shavertown. They were arrested Sunday at Shavertown and state police say the two have made statements.

It is charged that Saturday night the two went to a point about an eighth of a mile from the Davis farm where Van Steenburgh worked and placed railroad ties on the tracks near a trestle over the east branch of the Delaware river. In addition they are alleged to have placed spikes and fish-plates between the rail joints.

Fortunately the obstruction was discovered before any train on the little used railroad came along. Both freights and trains run infrequently on the line.

State Trooper Arthur Reilly and Trooper Michael Judge of this city were called to investigate along with Troopers Rock of Sidney and Troopers McGarvey and Taylor of Margaretville. Also investigating the charge were F.B.I. agents.

A resident of the area noticed the obstruction Sunday morning and summoned a track walker who called the state police. Several ties had been placed on the rails.

The investigation continued Sunday and resulted in the arrest of Davis and Van Steenburgh. The troopers say the two made a statement that they placed the obstructions on the tracks Saturday night.

Beaverbrook Tells Canadians Cause Is Linked to Russia

Miami Beach, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, British lease-lend coordinator, told the people of his native Canada last night that the way of freedom for Russia is the road to liberty for all who battle the Axis nations.

Calling for all the aid Britain, Canada and America can give the embattled Russians, Beaverbrook in a radio broadcast declared the news in the making in the bitter cold, slush and mud of the thaws of those distant battlefields "will determine the future of every race in the east and west, in every climate and over all the lands."

He told of his presence in Russia when the Nazi hordes smashed to within 15 miles of Moscow, of the "high courage and mighty devotion" of the defenders.

"Glory, glory! Moscow did not fall," said Lord Beaverbrook. "Today Russia must face a new test. She confronts a second storm, more violent and on a wider front and with more soldiers and more equipment hurled against her.

"Yet the battle of 1942 will have one difference from the battle of 1941. Amid the havoc and tempest the soldiers of the Red army will see steadily upheld before their gaze the gleam of early victory. They will have a chance to encompass the utter destruction of the German army from which source come all the infamies which afflict suffering men.

"The resolve of Britain, Canada and America must be to play our full part in this deadly, offensive stroke against the boasting enemy. x x x"

The lease-lend official is resting Miami for a few days before returning to Washington.

First of Series of Hi-Y Special Services Held

At 8 o'clock this morning the first of a series of three short worship services was held at the Y.M.C.A. These meetings are sponsored by the Kingston Hi-Y club.

This morning's speaker was the Rev. Mr. Kane of the First Baptist Church. Mr. Kane gave a short talk on "The Shouting Stones". He pointed out the fact that the stones speak to us. To the senses stones are inert, cold and dead, but to anyone with imagination or intellect stones are not dead. They are not dead to the physicist; stones are made up of moving particles he calls electrons and protons; the geologist sees the earth's history in the stones; the archaeologist reads the records of ancient peoples in the rocks.

Stones often appear in the life and teachings of Christ, Mr. Kane pointed out. Christ was tempted by the devil to change rocks to bread, as told in the fourth chapter of Matthew. Christ did not take the easy way. A parallel might be drawn in our own time said Mr. Kane. The dictators today want a rapid change and the glory connected with it. They are trying to change stones to bread.

Again Christ refered to 'the very stones crying out' and again to the coming razing of the stones of the temple. Christ pointed out that the Kingdom of God would survive, the Kingdom of God is not of material things. This is a truth we should remember today said Mr. Kane.

Tomorrow morning the Rev. Mr. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church will be the spaker. Edward Luedtke will lead the service, Bill Kinch will read the scripture and Lou Roosa will give the prayer. The Hi-Y Club invites all students interested to attend. The time is 8 to 8:20 o'clock and the place the Y.M.C.A.

Two Hurt in Cycle Crash

Freeman Photo

Fred Williams, 47, of R. F. D. New Paltz, and Samuel Smith of Tillson, were injured when the motorcycle in which they were riding struck the rear of an auto driven by Milfred Wendland, 38, of 155 Stephan street, this city, on Route 42, Tillson, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Williams was taken to the Benedictine Hospital by the McCardle ambulance, where he was treated for cuts on the nose and scalp wound. Smith was treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. Galvin of Rosendale for bruises on the head, hip and right leg. Shown above is the motorcycle on which the two had been riding. Deputy-Sheriff Reynolds, who investigated the accident, found that the Wendland car had slowed down, in order to back up and enter a side street on the left, in the village of Tillson, when the motorcycle struck it in the rear. The side car was smashed.

Congress Is Given Breathing Spell On Labor Measure

House and Senate Shelve Legislation Until After Easter; Public Reaction Gauged

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Tacit truce on demands for wartime labor legislation until after Easter today gave congressional leaders their first breathing spell in many weeks.

With House members assured that no important legislation would be considered there for two weeks, Senate leaders were reported to have agreed that the sizzling labor-profits argument would be shelved for the same period.

Meanwhile leaders expected this cooling-off period to give public opinion as expressed in mail and other communications a chance to crystallize. Senators were said to be planning a series of three day recesses with no legislative action except routine appropriation measures for the next fiscal year.

The Senate appropriation committee planned early action on the huge new $18,301,961,345 omnibus war appropriation approved by the House Saturday night.

It also had to act on the annual farm bill and several other supply measures that piled up while senators devoted three weeks to the debate over the right of Senator Langer (R., N. D.) to retain his seat, decided in his favor Friday.

Although no major legislative action was scheduled, committees at both ends of the capitol planned a busy week. The Senate labor committee called Brig. Gen. James A. Ulio and James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, to testify on the proposal of Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) to abolish it and the National Youth Administration as a wartime economy.

The special Senate committee investigating national defense called officials of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to answer charges by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold regarding patents for synthetic rubber and gasoline exchanged with German industrial leaders. The oil executives were asked to testify Tuesday.

Senator Connally (D., Tex.) served notice that he would make another attempt to get Senate action on his anti-strike bill calling for government seizure of plants and freezing of all labor conditions where disputes threaten war production.

Administration leaders in both the Senate and House, however, hoped to avoid any action on this or the bill from Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House naval affairs committee dealing with labor and profits under war contracts, until the truce period passed.

Londoners now prefer to dance to soft music, and jazz is "out."

Auto Hits House, Another Car and Telephone Pole

Herman J. Peterson of 71 Center street, Ellenville, employed at the Lackawack dam, was taken to the Veterans' Memorial Hospital Ellenville, by the police patrol car, about 7:30 o'clock Sunday night, following a ride down Center street during which he hit a house a car containing two men and a telephone pole.

Peterson was treated for lacerations of the lip and chin, six stitches being taken in the lip, a possible fracture of the upper jaw, shock and concussion. He also had four teeth broken off.

According to Chief of Police Porter, Peterson, who keeps his car in the garage of Myron C. Wood, at 59 Center street, struck the house when he brought his car out of the drive.

Continuing down the street he crashed into the rear of a car owned by William H. Evans, which was parked off the side of the roadway in front of the home of Karl T. Fleckenstein at 131 Center street. The Evans car was driven up over the sidewalk by the force of the impact and on to the Fleckenstein lawn, where it overturned. Evans and Fleckenstein, who had been sitting in the car talking, were thrown backward and later were treated by a local doctor for sprained backs.

After striking the Evans car and leaving it turned upside down, Peterson's old coupe went 40 or 50 feet further and struck a telephone pole, breaking it off.

Peterson's car was badly wrecked while the Evans car was badly damaged. Officer Earl Westbrook investigated the accident and took Peterson to the hospital in the patrol car.

Hudson Torch Bearers Will Hold Meeting Tonight

The monthly meeting of the Torch Bearers of the Hudson Valley District will be held at the Salvation Army hall, North Front street, at 8 o'clock this evening. This group comprises all young people of the Salvation Army from 15 to 25 years of age. There are more than 100 members in the six corps represented in the district and delegates from all the corps will attend this evening.

Election of officers for the coming year will be held. Major William Dewsbury of Yonkers, divisional secretary, will be present and Captain Daniel Fox of the New York State Troopers will give a talk on the work of the State Troopers. All young people of this age group are invited to attend this meeting.

Shriners to Be Guests

This evening the Shriners of Kingston and vicinity will be the guests of Cyprus Temple of Albany at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock in the Governor Clinton Hotel. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion and a buffet luncheon will be served.

Knox Outlines Need for Control

Inter-American Shipping Must Be Protected; Secretary Says

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that "one of the most urgent measures to be solved is the control and protection" of inter-American shipping, disruption of which, he said, is the objective of enemy submarine operations along the coasts.

Knox spoke before the opening session of the inter-American defense board on behalf of the U. S. Navy. He urged complete utilization of national resources to meet the expanding threat of the war.

"The increasing danger of the war coming to the America's is shown by the gradual expansion of the theatres of action," Knox said. "In 1940 it was called the battle of Britain; in 1941, the battle of the North Atlantic.

"We must now prepare for an extension of the theatre of action to the South Atlantic and to the entire Pacific."

Secretary of War Stimson told the board that it was hoped it would be "an instrument where in common council and discussion the needs and resources of each nation and the possibilities of mutual assistance can be fully understood and a solution of our various problems be reached."

Stimson assured the board "we shall never swerve from our purpose to carry this great war to a successful and victorious conclusion, or relax our energies until the enemies of freedom have been decisively crushed."

Knox reminded the defense board that the United States had assured all the other American republics of its complete support in case of attack by non-American powers and that it had also promised assistance in requiring armaments, training personnel, and providing technical advisors as they are desired.

But he emphasized that each of the republics "should develop its own naval resources to the extent of its ability in order to effect cooperation," especially against the threat to shipping.

Six Nazi Officers Are Shot in Paris

Score of Others Shipped to Poland; Negligence Is Given as Cause

New York, March 30 (AP)—Trustworthy advices received from Europe today by the Associated Press said travelers who recently visited Paris reported that six German officers were shot and a score of others sent to prisons camps in Poland on charges of negligence at the time of the R. A. F. raid on the Paris area March 3.

These reports said that almost all the officers in charge of the air defenses of the city were attending a gala party at a luxurious night club, the Bal Tabarin, that night and knew nothing about the raid until the bombs had been falling for some time on the big Renault motorcar plants on the scene.

Among the officers at the party, it was said, were those responsible for sounding an alert.

These reports said the noise of the party was so great that the officers failed to hear the bombs and probably would not have known of it until it was all over had not the manager happened to go outside and returned to inform them.

Husband and Wife Hurt In City Auto Collision

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Farren of 495 Albany avenue, were injured about 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon when their automobile was in collision with a car driven by George Steinmetz of 102 O'Neil street, at the intersection of East Chester street and Hasbrouck avenue. They were removed to the Benedictine Hospital for treatment.

According to the police report Mrs. Farren suffered a broken collar bone and other injuries, while her husband was cut about the head.

The Farren car was turned over on its side from the force of the impact when the two cars collided.

India's Great Act Now Must Be That Of Helping British

close to a fifth of the world's population.

Untold millions are primitive peoples, treading the paths their ancestors trod centuries ago. Moreover, this huge peninsula has small claim to nationalism, for there are many races and some 220 languages are spoken, incredible though it seem. Also, the castes, which form great barriers between the different classes of the population, run into thousands.

Hindustan's answer is that she has many brilliant and highly educated men and women upon whom to draw, and that the only way a country can learn to govern is to govern. Government cannot be learned in correspondence school.

Question Is Big

That Hindustan does indeed have a large number of learned men and women there is no doubt. I spent many months there studying the situation and for weeks maintained open house in the summer capital at Simla. Indians from all over the empire visited me, and I came away with the conviction that the people of Hindustan have a fine mentality, and are capable of unlimited advancement.

But the immediate question is far bigger than whether India is absolutely ready for self-government. She is faced with the greatest crisis in her modern history—the grave threat of Japanese invasion. Unless the people of India get squarely behind the British government for the defense of their country they may shortly suffer the horrors of being overrun by Nipponese hordes. And probably such an attack would encourage an invasion by the barbarous tribesmen of the northwest frontier, up by the famous Khyber Pass.

True, we fully expect the Allies to win this war, and in the long run they would free India of the Japanese yoke. But the Allies couldn't replace the lives lost or wipe out the terrible memories of the invasion. Now is the time for India to rescue herself, and not after she has endured such a hell.

New Guinea Floods Hit Jap Forces

the Melbourne Herald reported that the war cabinet and war council would meet this week with the expectation that the Japanese would strike heavily at Australia within two or three weeks.

Among the forces gathering to defend Australia, and smash out for it an offensive, are American negro ground troops, mostly skilled technical workers, and large groups of Anzac airmen and troops back from other fronts, a spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters announced.

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines reached Melbourne today. His arrival in Australia was disclosed last Friday.

"El Presidente" appeared tired but his care-lined face was wreathed in smiles when MacArthur strode forward at the railroad station to greet his friend of many years.

School Windows Broken

Kingston's police department this morning received complaint from the school authorities that over the week-end a dozen windows had been broken in School No. 2 on West Chestnut street. The school authorities said that the windows were broken by children who had climbed over the fence and were playing in the school yard. The gates of the fence are now kept closed and locked, and it was stated that any children or other persons found playing in the school yard after school hours will be arrested.

Will Form League

An Independent Softball League for the summer will be formed as the department of recreation has announced no provisions for one. The age limit will be 19 and under. Three teams have signed so far: Centrals, Cubs and U.B.K. Fraternity. Other teams which may enter include the Clowns, Raichles, M.J.M. and Matthews. Teams interested in entering the loop are requested to write Jason Goumas, 22 Hoffman street. The games will be played on either Thursday or Saturday at the three M.J.M. diamonds.

Japs Find Burma Fight Is Tougher

way to Prome, British Imperial forces supported by mechanized units joined battle with the Japanese at Paungde, about 30 miles south of Prome. Apart from being a milestone on the road to India, Prome is the gateway to the Irrawaddy oil fields.

A favorable Indian answer to the British proposal may bring the Japanese into an all-out effort to strike into India—if they are not exerting that effort already. There have been signs in Japanese propaganda that Tokyo was withholding such an assault, pending India's choice.

With the United Nations resistance in Australia forcing a stalemate if not an actual turning of the tide of conquest into the southwest Pacific, India may have been picked by Tokyo's strategists as the most feasible theatre of battle.

Japan probably cannot afford to mark time. She must use her striking power before it is too greatly vitiated.

A British source, after simple addition, said today that Allied communiques and official statements have listed at least 1,025 Japanese planes destroyed since Pearl Harbor.

This, he said, was nearly a third of the total of first class fighting planes with which Japan plunged into battle. His starting figure was 3,650—considerably lower than other estimates which have put the number at 5,000 to 6,000.

The British promise of freedom after the war in return for full and immediate support against a threatened Japanese invasion lay before the conglomerate millions of India today, with some of their most influential leaders apparently favoring the deal.

The British plan envisioned the creation of a new Indian union which would be a dominion within the British Empire but would have the power to secede.

As a concession to the powerful Moslem minority of 77,000,000, which fears domination by the 240,000,000 Hindus, the plan would allow separate constitutions for state or provinces which did not accede to the New India Union constitution. Thus two autonomous Indias would be created.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British envoy charged with putting the plan before India's leaders, made it clear that the proposal must be accepted or rejected as a whole.

Should Mobilize Manpower

Putting in words the British feeling that India should in turn rise up against the Japanese in her full force, Sir Strafford reminded the people of the sub-continent they should mobilize fully their manpower and war resources to meet Axis threats.

The Left and Right wings of the All-India Congress party were believed favorable to the plan, although a party leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, was reported feeling it would keep India from attaining full political integrity. The Moslem League also was expected to support it.

Nature came to the aid of the United Nations in the southwest Pacific battle zone. Heavy floods were reported to have compelled the Japanese trying to advance inland along the Markham Valley of New Guinea to withdraw to bases at Lae and Salamaua, on the New Guinea east coast.

General Douglas MacArthur, Supreme Allied Commander in the Southwest Pacific, discussed battle plans during the week-end with associates in Australia while Japanese planes struck ineffectually at Darwin, Australia, and Port Moresby, New Guinea.

Japanese forces on the Philippines launched a heavy attack on the right center of the United States line on Bataan Peninsula Saturday but the U. S. War Department reported the assault was driven back with heavy losses.

First of Noonday Union Holy Week Services Held

The first of a series of Holy Week noon-day union services to be held this week from 12:25 to 12:50 o'clock at the First Dutch Reformed Church was held today with the Rev. Maurice Venno, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in charge. These services will be held throughout the week to and including Friday at the same hour. The services are sponsored by the Kingston Ministerial Association and all denominations are welcome.

Holy Week services are being held for the convenience of people in the business section who may desire to attend mid-day services during the noon hour. The theme for the week is "His Triumph and Ours."

The Tuesday noon service will be conducted by the Rev. Herbert Greenland, associate pastor of the First Reformed Church.

broader judicial review of administrative agencies' findings.

The special commissioner also recommended creation of a division of administrative procedure to examine quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative procedures and problems of judicial review, and separation of the state labor relations board functions to permit investigations by a state labor relations authority.

Simultaneously, he suggested preventing legislators and full-time state employes from practing before administrative agencies for compensation, and advised placing hearing officers in the competitive class of civil service.

Before taking an April 1-7 recess in observation of the Jewish Holy Days and Easter, leaders said both Republicans and Democrats would approve a year's extension of the Rapp-Coudert committee investigation activities.

Life of the committee, scheduled to end March 15, was lengthened to June 1 by a resolution adopted only two weeks ago. A new resolution would give another year to the joint inquiry into methods of allocating state funds for public schools and into subversive activities in New York City's schools and colleges.

Concern is Expressed

Concern was expressed in some legislative quarters over possibility that bills for legislative and congressional reapportionment would not be introduced before the April 1 deadline for submission of bills.

On that date, the senate rules prohibit introduction of any measure without unanimous consent which, legislators agree, could not be obtained for any such controversial measure as reapportionment. The assembly has had a similar rule in effect since mid-March.

Because of antagonism to the bills from legislators whose districts would be adversely affected, leaders saw little likelihood of their passage. The measures would increase the number of senatorial districts from 51 to 56 and cause revision of almost all assembly lines.

The proposed congressional reapportionment bill would combine the 32nd district, now represented by Rep. Francis D. Culkin, Republican, and the 30th district, represented by Rep. Frank Crowther, Republican. It also would join the 27th district, represented by Lewis K. Rockefeller, Republican, with the 26th, represented by Hamilton Fish.

The measure, too, would allow the two congressmen-at-large in New York's 45 representatives to be absorbed by New York city.

Local Woman Injured In Sunday Night Crash

Mrs. Ruth Brackett of Maple Lane Farm, Albany Avenue Extension, suffered a fracture of the palate and had several teeth knocked out, when the car in which she was riding, driven by her husband, Charles Brackett, was in collision with a car driven by Bertie F. Phillips of Kingston, R. D. 1. Mrs. Brackett was taken to the Kingston Hospital by Deputy Sheriff Gilmore, who with Deputy Belmore investigated the accident.

The collision took place near the intersection of Albany avenue extension and the By-Pass about 9:40 o'clock Sunday night, when one of the drivers turned left to enter a driveway and the other became confused by the headlights. Both cars were considerably damaged.

Fred Rice Captures Class A Singles in Bowling Tournament

Veteran Hits 703 Saturday; Highest In Local History

Ken Williams, Hod Spaulding Win Class A Doubles; E. Auchmoody and Miller Also Triumph

One of the real veterans of the local bowling alleys, Freddie Rice, climbed to further heights in the closing round of the sixth annual city bowling tournament Saturday night at Emerick's Recreation alleys by pounding out a sizzling 703 triple on single scores of 246, 233 and 224 and thereby captured the Class A singles title.

Rice came home with the highest total in the tournament's history. After the ten pin veteran had slammed out 246 and 233, he needed at least 221 for a coveted 700 triple. Rice went to work in the final game with a spare, then a double. He then had another spare and followed with a triple.

The Class A doubles crown went to Ken Williams and Hod Spaulding, who crashed out a nifty 1215 total. Williams paced the two keglers with games of 188, 202 and 235. Spaulding had 207, 185 and 198.

Randy Kelder and Fred Rice came in second in the Class A. doubles with 1180. Rice had 211, 193 and 214. Kelder collected games of 167, 185, 210. E. Scott and C. Benson slapped out 1145 for third. Harold Broskie and Charlie Tiano combined with a 1132 series. Broskie's 264 opener sparked his 611 triple. Broskie raised his own Class A high single from 246 to 264, which assures him of both the tournament prize and City of Kingston Class A trophy.

Steve Breitfeller's 638 triple came in second to Rice's hammering 703. Breitfeller had games of 196, 236 and 206. Walt Burger also crashed the prize list with 613 while Harold Broskie posted 605.

Class B Doubles

The veterans R. Racette and Bill Sill claimed the Class B doubles with a 1096 total. Sill collected 559 and Racette had 537. Second place in this event went to Mike Provenzano and Tommy Rowland with a 1086 series.

Harvey Miller came through with a sizzling 621 series to win the Class B singles championship. Miller also had 244, high single for Class B in the tournament which is good for the city trophy.

Class C

Elting Auchmoody went through the Class C division in no uncertain manner. He rolled the high single of 587 and carried off the high single game with an outstanding 246 and also copped the all-events and city trophy. The Class C doubles were taken by J. Black and H. Appleman of Ellenville with 968.

City Bowling Tourney at Emericks

Week-End Sports In Brief Review

(By The Associated Press)

Greensboro, N. C.—Sam Byrd, former major league outfielder, won $5,500 Greensboro Golf Open Tourney with 72-hole score of 279, five under par. Ben Hogan and Lloyd Mangrum fired 281's for second money.

New York—National League pro football club owners drafted customary 55-game schedule in three-day meeting with Mike Rodak, former Western Reserve star, sold by Detroit to Pittsburgh in the only player sale.

Kansas City—Stanford, Pacific coast champion, defeated Dartmouth, eastern intercollegiate king, 53 to 38, for N. C. A. A. basketball championship.

Cambridge, Mass.—Yale annexed N. C. A. A. tank title for first time in 18 years by compiling 71 points. Michigan second with 39 and Ohio State third with 34.

East Lansing, Mich.—Oklahoma A. and M. won N. C. A. A. wrestling championship for sixth straight year by taking four individual titles and collecting 31 points. Host Michigan state grapplers second with 26.

Miami, Fla.—Daily Delivery surprised to win $5,000 De Soto Handicap at Tropical Park with favored Augury second. The winner paid $28.80 for $2.

Hot Springs, Ark.—With Regards, a Kentucky Derby candidate, won $5,000 Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn by setting track record of $1.50 for mile and a furlong.

Austin, Tex.—Harold Hunt of Nebraska, went 14 feet ⅜ inch to win pole vault at annual University of Texas relays with the host team dominant in the baton passing events.

Baton Rouge, La.—Wisconsin boxers won four N. C. A. A. championships and team title.

Winter Pays Return Visit With Light Fall of Snow

Winter paid a return visit to Kingston Sunday night and left an inch of snow that fell as freezing temperatures gripped the city. This morning there were snow flurries throughout the city.

The snow which fell was wet and soggy and followed a fall of rain about 7 o'clock Sunday night.

So far there has been a snowfall of 28 inches during the winter in Kingston, according to the records in the city engineer's office. Up to December 31, there had been a fall of six inches, while since the first of the year 22 inches had fallen in the city, including the inch-fall of last night.

Temperatures in Kingston on Sunday ranged from a low of 27 to a high of 52.

Junior City Cage Champs

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

Siebert in Fold

San Francisco — Holdout Dick Siebert, Philadelphia Athletic first baseman, is back in the fold and a definite improvement in the club's attack is expected shortly.

Siebert, who hit .334 for the Mackmen last year, previously had refused a contract with a bonus clause but agreed to 1942 terms in a telephone conversation with Manager Connie Mack late yesterday. Siebert's home is in St. Paul, Minn., and he will join the club either tomorrow or Wednesday.

New Giant Coach

Miami, Fla. — Clarence Jonnard, new coach of the New York Giants, formerly caught in the National League at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and is a twin brother of Claude Jonnard who pitched for the Giants in the days of John McGraw.

MacPhail Loses Bet

Daytona Beach, Fla. — Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, wasn't too confident that Whitlow Wyatt, his opponent in the recent holdout battle, would be in shape as the pitcher made his first appearance of the season yesterday against the Washington Senators. MacPhail bet $25 the Senators would score at least twice but Wyatt blanked the American Leaguers and whiffed four batsmen.

Bombers Silenced Again

St. Petersburg, Fla. — The New York Yankees are about ready to discard the nicknames of "Bronx Bombers" and "Ruppert Rifles." Yesterday's 3 to 2 loss was their eighth game this season decided by a one-run margin and all their 11 blows in the fray were singles.

Reds Drop Three

Tampa, Fla. — Before the Cincinnati Reds broke camp today, rookie pitchers Ben Wade and Les Hinckle and outfielder Eddie Lukon were ordered to report to the Syracuse Chief's training camp at Fort Lauderdale, pending disposition of their contracts.

LAKE KATRINE

Lake Katrine, March 30—Employes of Boice Bros Dairy had a dinner party at Judie's Thursday evening. Those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Pratt Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Jason Boice, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leroy Boice, Mr. and Mrs. William Myer, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morehouse, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Winchell, Mr. and Mrs. Burlin Winchell, Mr. and Mrs. Al Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheeley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Aken, Crawford Millham, Ralph Woolsey and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Whitaker.

The next first aid class, under the instruction of Dr. Bibby, will be held Tuesday, March 31.

There will be a Home Bureau meeting April 2 at the home of Mrs. Edmond Osterhoudt. This will be on clothes-closet arrangement.

Mrs. Auley Roosa has been appointed chairman of the town of Ulster "Nutrition for Defense Committee." Classes are being organized in various communities of the townships. Those who wish to join are asked to call Mrs. Roosa, phone 3778 J.

Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Bailey of Ravena visited Mr. and Mrs. Auley Roosa Thursday.

Sligo, Eire, is trying to collect back rent on 900 municipal cottages.

Sam Byrd Takes Greensboro Golf; First Tourney Win

Former Yankee, Redleg Baseball Star, Slams Out 279 Score on 72-Hole Course

Greensboro, N. C., March 30 (AP)—Sammy Byrd, former major league baseball player, put the greater Greensboro trophy under his arm today and led the touring money-makers to Asheville, where the Land of the Sky Open starts Thursday.

The scholarly-appearing Byrd, who left baseball in 1936 after playing with the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds, crashed through to his first tournament triumph yesterday with a 72-hole score of 279, five under par. That netted him $1,000.

He ended two strokes below Ben Hogan, currently leading the cash winning race and the Vardon Trophy competition, and Lloyd Mangrum, the steady Chicago swinger.

Defending Champion Byron Nelson and Clayton Heafner, of Charlotte and Linville, N. C., were next with 282s.

Nelson had tough luck on the 71st hole. There his ball hit a spectator on the green and bounced into the creek. He lost a stroke on a penalty, a bad lie when he lifted out cost two more and he ended with a six on the par three hole.

For steady, A-1 golf all the way, Hogan came in for his share of applause. The Hershey, Pa., pro two years ago won the north and south at Pinehurst, the Greater Greensboro and the Land of the Sky Open. Last year he repeated his championship at Asheville and this year won the north and south.

Hogan's money winnings for the year total $7,808 and Sam Snead is second with $5,878. Hogan has 200 Vardon Trophy points and Snead 132.

Salesman Is Shot To Death; Young Woman Is Held

Camden, N. J., March 30 (AP)—Pearson Lessy, 34-year-old furniture salesman, was found shot to death at 12:30 a. m. (E.W.T.) today on a lawn a few feet from his home. Five bullets had entered his body.

Three hours after the discovery, an attractive 21-year-old brunette was taken into custody and held as a "material witness in a murder case."

The young woman, booked as Miss Louise Abate of Camden, was quoted by Police Lieutenant Samuel Johnson as saying she had spent the week-end with Lessy and that he left her home about 45 minutes before his body was found.

She told investigators, Johnson said, that Lessy recently had received several threatening telephone calls from an unidentified man who warned:

"Stay away from my girl."

Miss Abate broke down and wept during questioning at police headquarters.

"I loved him," she said. "We intended to get married in June."

Lessy was the former husband of Charlotte Cloverdale, a singer who uses the professional name of Carlotta Dale. He obtanined a divorce in 1938, saying she preferred a career to marriage.

Pirates and Browns Share First in Grapefruit League

Senators and Cards Are Pushing Rivals for No. 1 Positions; Phillies Drop

New York, March 30 (AP)—Major league baseball teams are getting plenty of exercise in the sun-bathed citrus circuit, but they may have to wait until the July all-star game to determine anything in the way of superiority between the American and National loops.

Sixty-eight exhibition games have sent teams from one league against those from the other in the first month of grapefruit competition, and today they are neck and necky, with each league owning 34 decisions.

First place in the grapefruit standings is shared by the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Browns. The Pirates have won 12 of their 16 starts and the Brownies nine out of 12 for a percentage of .750 each.

Both teams, incidentally, also top their respective circuits in inter-league competition. The Browns have won all five of their games against National League teams, while the Bucs have taken five out of six from American League clubs.

Washington's Senators, who missed a chance to take the lead in the sunshine league when the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped them, 6-1, yesterday, are pushing the pace-setters with 14 victories in 19 games—all against major league opposition. The Nats have won seven out of ten with National League teams and seven out of nine in their own circuit.

Cards Belt Yankees

Fourth place belongs to the St. Louis Cardinals, who also have confined their activity to major league clubs, including nine games with the World Champion New York Yankees.

They swept a two-game series with the Yanks during the week-end, running their spring record to 15 wins and seven losses. In 18 games against American League teams the Cards have taken 12, half of them from New York.

The Philadelphia Phils, grapefruit leaders a week ago, bumped into the New York Giants and the Browns in recent days and dropped a pair to each, landing in fifth place in the standings with seven victories and five defeats.

For those who insist on comparing the strength of the two leagues, a tip might be lurking in the record of the Boston Red Sox, who finished second in the American League pennant chase in 1941.

Held out of the grapefruit cellar only by the Boston Braves, the Red Sox have won half of their ten games against National League teams but have played seven games with their own American League clubs and lost every one.

Two Are Arrested On Sodomy Charge

City Police Make Arrest in Shed Near Creek

Maurice Jones, 42, who gave his address as Albany avenue, and Joseph Sheeley, 41, who gave his address as 9 Foxhall avenue, were arrested Saturday night in an old shed along the Esopus creek in the rear of 195 Albany avenue, by the police who charged both men with the crime of sodomy.

This morning in police court both men were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill and waived examination and were held for grand jury action. Both men were informed by Judge Cahill that if they desired bail they could apply to county court when the amount of the bail would be fixed.

Timothy Doyle of Summer street charged with double parking, Richard Passerini of 438 Hasbrouck avenue, charged with double parking his car on a crosswalk, and Fred Archer of Catskill charged with failing to observe a full stop sign, all forfeited bail when their cases were called for trial in police court.

Gets 60 Days

Theodore VanKeuren of Fleischmanns, who was rearrested March 26, after serving a four months sentence in the Ulster county jail, was arraigned before Justice Tompkins of the town of Marbletown Saturday. He was allowed to plead to a charge of petit larceny and the Justice gave him 60 days in the county jail. VanKeuren was charged with having taken three guns and some other articles from his former employer. The guns were returned.

War Fund Drive To End April 1; Quota in Sight

With less than $2,000 needed to reach the quota, former Senator Charles W. Walton, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross, announced this morning that the War Fund campaign would close Wednesday, April 1, and stated that he was confident that the quota of $45,000 would be attained when the final reports were in.

"Local contributions expected from the workers in the city wards and townships without doubt will carry the Ulster County Chapter over its quota of $45,000," said Mr. Walton, "and we earnestly urge all workers to make complete reports of their contributions by Wednesday, April 1, so that we can announce to the citizens of this county that Ulster has done its share in the War Fund Campaign."

However, Mr. Walton stressed the fact that although the campaign officially would close Wednesday, contributions would be cheerfully accepted for the War Fund at anytime, as the Red Cross would need all possible financial aid to carry on its war work for the armed forces of the Allied nations.

The drive for the War Fund in the town of Shawangunk is scheduled to get under way beginning April 6 and continuing through that week under the chairmanship of Samuel Woodbridge of the Wallkill National Bank. Results of the campaign in this town are expected to put the Ulster county drive "over the top."

Laidlaw Addresses Federated Clubs

School Official Employs Theme of Service for Christian Manhood

"The Measure of the citizens of today is their concern for the citizens of tomorrow, and no one can lay claim to being a Christian unless he is giving time, service, and thought to the future of those who follow Him," said Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw, addressing 323 men Sunday morning at the third annual Communion breakfast of the Federation of Men's Clubs.

The breakfast was held at the Governor Clinton following the Communion service at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church where more than 500 members of the Federation from Kingston and Ulster county attended the Communion service.

Prof. Laidlaw, speaking on "The Citizens of Tomorrow", pointed out the need of leadership and education for our youths today in order that we might build a strong nation for the future. In the home and in the school Mr. Laidlaw said the children should be educated in a belief in the importance and goodness of mankind. The future of family life will be more secure, he said, if the generation which is coming up can be brought to some sort of spirituality.

There were over five hundred men at the Communion service in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church where the Rev. Victor H. Kane, chaplain of the Federation, and the Rev. William R. Peckham, pastor of the church, presided. Holy Communion was served at 8 o'clock after which the men went in a body to the Governor Clinton Hotel where breakfast was served.

At the church, the Rev. Fred H. Deming, the Rev. Linton Doherty, the Rev. Russell Damstra assisted in the service. George Arnold, organist, and members of the choir assisted in the service.

The Rev. Victor H. Kane, chaplain, acted as toastmaster at the hotel and presented Prof. Laidlaw, who delivered a very stirring address on the requirements today to make for better citizens tomorrow.

Mr. Laidlaw, speaking on "The Citizens of Tomorrow" said:

It hardly seems necessary to say that I appreciate the honor of bringing any message to this gathering of laymen. And since this is a holy day in the Church's year, will you go back with me to a heart-warming scene in the Biblical drama—"The reconciliation meeting between Esau and Jacob". They had been separated since the days of their youth, when Jacob had cheated Esau of his birthright, and after these years Jacob is returning from a foreign country to the region of his fathers, where he is to meet Esau.

As they look forward to this meeting, Esau has every reason to be angry, Jacob every reason to be afraid, but the night before the meeting Jacob wrestles with an invisible antagonist, his own higher, diviner self, and after that he is able to meet Esau in peace—peace, which, by the way, is worth noting as we pass. When a man fights it out with himself first, he is less likely to fight with somebody else.

Suffice it to say, Jacob finds forgiveness in the eyes of Esau and then together they plan their journey. Now there appears a revealing evidence of the changed nature of Jacob—that man who began his career with chicanery and self-seeking is now concerned about youth, and he says to Esau, "I will lead on softly according as the children be able to endure". In that statement of concern for youth, Jacob reveals a trait which held the Hebrew people together through all the ages of persecution; in fact, the test of a society is the care of its youth. Any society is degenerate and done-for when it reaches the barren stage of Louis of France, who said, "After us, the Deluge".

The virility of America is attested by the fact of the oft-quoted assertion that America's passion is education; and if you want a test of whether you are a good citizen, and certainly you are a good Christian, I know of none more decisive than this; look around at the youth and ask yourself, how much do I care about their future?

The measure of the citizens of today is their concern for the citizens of tomorrow, and no one can claim to being a Christian unless he is giving time, service, and thought to the future of those who follow him. We find the test of our citizenship, of our Christianity, of our education, in the simple formula of the Patriarch Jacob, "I will lead on softly according as the children be able to endure."

The first thing that strikes me about that is this; I, if I am to follow a formula, will be a pathfinder.

When Ramsay MacDonald visited this country a few years ago, he was entertained at the city hall in New York. In response to the address of welcome, he said that his prayer was to be a road-mender, opening the highways of youth to the generation, especially toward the goal of peace and international understanding. There is a certain poignancy about remembering those words of Ramsay MacDonald today, for the roads that men were charting 15 years ago have now so largely gone back to jungle. We are wandering in the wilderness, and in this bewilderment youth are confused; they are ethically confused when they see might triumphing over right and principle giving way to expedience; they are religiously confused, asking in all this, Where is Thy God?

Something to Believe In

Young people are somewhat in the state of a young man who about a year ago said to me, "The earlies memories I can recall as a boy are those of cutting out war pictures. Then I was sent to college in the booming, hectic 1920's, graduating at the peak of prosperity. Then I was tossed into a depression; I have never yet lived through a period which you would call normal times. What I need is something to believe in, something to hold to."

Where will youth find something to believe in and hold to? They are ready to be a prey or some Pied Piper from Berlin or Rome or Tokyo, but in a democracy, where is the leadership?

There was a time when education was clear in its program for bewildered youth. When Dartmouth College was founded, the first seal of that college had on it the slogan, "Vox Calmitans in Deserto (voice crying in the wilderness.") The first president of Columbia University said, "The chief thing aimed at in this college is to teach and engage the children to know God through Jesus Christ and to love and serve Him in all sobriety, godliness, and righteousness of life."

Where is the educator today who could come out and state in such simple terms, or would dare to do it, the aims of education?

In the home and in the school children should be educated in a belief in the importance and goodness of mankind. The future of family life will be more secure if the generation which is coming up can be brought to some sort of spirituality.

We must be willing and ready to fight or even to die for our religion and for our way of life. We are told that the natives of the Malayan peninsula idly went about their work, paying little attention and manifesting very little interest in the battles going on round about them. When Singapore was under siege and was being bombed from the air, we heard music being broadcast over the radio. In the Philippines the converse occurs. The natives are proving themselves to be remarkable fighters and are demonstrating acts of bravery and heroism yet unheard of. Why! Because in the Malayan peninsula the people have not experienced independence. They have not known what freedom was; but in the Philippines, under a free democratic form of government, the natives have something to fight for. They will suffer any hardship and make any sacrifice rather than to be under the heel of Japan where freedom is unknown. That is why the Chinese are proving themselves to be such splendid soldiers —they are fighting for freedom, for a democratic way of life.

For almost five years China, the first victim of the aggressor, has fought against terrific odds. Now that our common enemy, gangster Japan, has struck against us, do we Americans appreciate how bravely and well China has fought. Now we know the cruel, crafty strength of Japan. We have felt it in humiliation, in the loss of American soil, in the loss of ships and blood. That China alone and practically unaided was able to hold out against this fully prepared, powerful foe, it not a miracle, is certainly a tribute to the extreme bravery and noble devotion of her people toward a just cause. Already China is fighting with the British in south China. She is helping in Burma and Thailand. She will assist in retaking Hongkong, and her troops may one day march in the same victorious army that re-enters our own Manila.

What is this whirl in which we are caught? Is it a great, gigantic mechanical fly wheel on which we ride like dizzy flies, or is it a vale of soul-making where we, the sons of God, are working out some kind of destiny? What is this vicious circle of recurring wars? Is it "a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury signifying nothing," or is it the pain of creation and travail, giving birth to a dream that is better? Are there any purposes worth living for and worth dying for? Why sacrifice for others? Why be good? Why live? Those are questions we face when we try to help form a philosophy of life.

My contention is that to answer those questions is neither sectarian nor dogmatic; it is simply the kind of American citizenship on which this country is built. We have to assume some responsibility for making the path for the citizens of tomorrow. You say that this is true—this is the task of education. May I be more personal for a moment? You represent a good cross-section of the manhood of Kingston, but may I ask you personally do those boys and girls who look at you and me get a more vivid sense of God's guidance? As they watch us live, does life become more meaningful to them?

In our churches we put our youth off in departments that we call youth departments, and a few elders only take notice of them when they want to control the budget and restrain their activities. In civic life we who are middle-aged and beyond stand at the controls of business and government till we get into a war, and then we call on the boys to give their blood to protect our gold and homes.

Vast Revolution

We are in a revolution today, a revolution so vast and deep that to think we can steady it by merely getting rid of a couple of dictators is just about as futile as to think we could stabilize a storm at sea by skimming off the whitecaps. We are in a war to defend and even to promote to encourage, and incite so-called democratic principles throughout the world. The nation that will be strongest tomorrow is the nation which has the most resourceful mind, the most efficient social organizations, the greatest faith in its ideals, and the best knowledge of the moral and spiritual sources of power, and for that we need endurance, and you men and other groups like this one are the potential leaders in training that endurance.

And let us not allow the immediate exigencies of war to distract our attention from the long-range perspectives of the best preparedness we have, namely education, both religious and secular, and that is going to take as tough a mental discipline as the physical discipline we give to men in our army camps. I am not worried about the future of American bodies; I am a bit worried about the future stamina of American minds and character. I think we are getting a bit soft. I think we are a bit like that camp up in Maine that, advertising for summer patrons from Boston and New York, sent out a little brochure with this title on it, "Roughing It Smoothly". That is what we want; we want things made as comfortable as we can.

We seem to lack that mental stamina to stand up to difficulty, even to hard thinking. We have so many easy escapes, such as motion pictures, where we can step out from stern reality to the world of make-believe. We must stiffen the mental discipline and character of our people, especially our youth. For a quick fight, anger is the best motive. Make a man mad and he will call up quick resources. We are in that mood now.

This is the twilight of the pacifist and the conscientious objector and the neutral. For better or worse, a day has come when the race is to the swift and the battle to the strong, and the future lies with the fighters. It is clear for all to see.

Jesus said, "Love your enemies"; but He also said, "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword". There was no pussyfooting or conscientious objecting when He drove the money-changers out of the temple. He was good and mad.

Right now is a time for men to be good and mad. If this old world is ever to have peace again, it's a peace that must be fought for.

But for the long pull, anger is not the motive. "Love suffereth long and is kind; love prayeth all things, believeth all things, endureth all things, hopeth all things." Love is the lasting motive, and unless we can give to youth some loyalty, some sense of belonging to something bigger than themselves, something positive, our churches and schoolrooms will be poisoned with something from which we cannot disinfect them.

James Truslow Adams has said, "The greatest contribution America has made to the world is the American dream," which he defined thus, "the dream of a land where life shall be richer and fuller and better, with opportunity for every man according to achievement and ability."

If that dream ever dies out of the American people, and especially the American youth, our democracy is done for. I call upon you to keep that dream alive in the minds of the young. Let us not allow them to think that everything is over because everything is interrupted. Things that are ultimate and eternal will go on.

The four catch words of totalitarian dictators are: "Believe! Obey! Sacrifice! Die!" If the citizens of the American republic have no convictions with regard to the values in which they believe, democracy will be supplanted. If America will not voluntarily obey the disciplines of morality, immoral forces will discipline us. If the spirit of sacrifice of the individual for the general welfare is lost, the American way of life will disappear. If the citizens of this nation have no ideals they would preserve, then surely despotism and darkness will totally overcome the western hemisphere as it now envelops the eastern continent. The schools and the churches must work out together the salvation of the spiritual life of this people. The freedom of these two institutions will endure or fall together.

I think I can sum up this thought of mine today in a figure. It is the figure of the Pioneer Woman that stands in Oklahoma. When the call came for the figure to symbolize the pioneer woman, several models were submitted in New York, but the one chosen was the figure of a woman with a Bible under her right arm, her left holding the hand of a boy of about 12, with whom she is walking briskly forward, in step, eyes up. That is America's mothering education, to take the Book of Life, transmit it through the body and blood of parents and teachers who take in their hands the hands of youth and then walk forward with them, in step with eyes up. That is America's answer in religion and in education to the darkness of our day.

Cast in St. James Religious Drama

Last evening, the young people of the Epworth League at St. James Methodist Church, presented a religious drama, "In His Strength," for the Palm Sunday evening service. The portrayals of Peter, Harry Mickle, and his wife, Miss Hilda Kinch, were all given. In addition the supporting cast, including the youngest member, Miss Alice Millonig, gave excellent characterizations of their roles. The scenery, both of the court yard and the garden, were effective and the lighting aided in the presentation, of the story of Peter and his denials.

Cream Truck Spills Its Load on Road

Vehicle Overturns Following Skid When Driver Tries to Stop

Heavy cream took a decided drop at Shokan Sunday but the drop will not affect the market price to the consumer. The drop took place when 123 cans of heavy cream being transported on one of the H. and L. F. McBride milk trucks were strewn over the roadway at Grossman's turn on the Ashokan boulevard when the big trailer-truck overturned after going into a skid on the sharp curve.

Sunday evening about 9:30 o'clock as John Dudek of New Hampton was driving toward Kingston in a snowstorm he attempted to halt his truck to clean the windshield. The heavy vehicle skidded to the left of the road, struck a bank and was thrown over to the west side of the road where it overturned after heading back up the road. The cargo of 125 cans of milk was thrown in a jumble of debris for a distance of some 200 feet. Only two cans remained intact on the truck and most of the milk was spilled. It was estimated that the cream was worth $5,000.

Dudek was on his way from Norwich to Goshen at the time. As Dudek drove east he applied the brakes in an effort to stop the heavy vehicle and clear his windshield of the snow. The trailer skidded over to the left of the road and gouged out the bank. The steep bank caused the driver to loose control and efforts to keep the truck upright failed.

People in the vicinity went to the aid of the driver who suffered injuries to his back and possible internal injuries. Trooper Dunn was notified and with Trooper Maish of Phoenicia came to the scene and aided in clearing the highway. Unable to move the truck, one way traffic was established, and a wrecker from the company's headquarters at Goshen was summoned. The truck blocked one side of the roadway still this morning.

Dr. Kurt Lowensthal of Shokan was called to treat the driver.

Traffic was routed over a one-way section of the road pending removal of the heavy vehicle.

Autos Collide

Cars driven by William Bayer of Gardiner, RD, who is with the merchant marine, and Frederick Sauer of Whiteport, RD, collided near the top of Rosendale hill, Route 32, about 11:15 o'clock Saturday night. The Sauer car was so badly damaged that it could not proceed on its way, but damage to the Bayer car was comparatively slight. Drivers escaped uninjured.

Held for Theft

Robert Bachman, 24, of 236 East 86 street, New York city, was arrested at Mettacahonts Saturday by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and Barley on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Bachman, who is a native of Hamburg, Germany, was turned over to the Monticello police, where it is stated he is wanted in connection with the theft of an automobile.

Staatsburg Men Jailed

Myron Brown, 20 and Lloyd Brown, 18, both of Staatsburg, were arrested Saturday by Sergeant Hulse and Trooper Benson, at Highland, on charges of disorderly conduct. Justice Walter Seaman gave them ten days each in the Ulster county jail.

Reunion for Former Associates

Jackie Swanson Is Held Upstate With Girl, Boy

Silver Creek, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—Jackie Swanson, 17 "the apple boy" who won nationwide attention and release from a prison term for housebreaking in which he claimed his only loot was an apple, is in police custody again.

Jackie, whose home now is in Buffalo, and two companions were arrested yesterday by State Police in connection with a lunchcar holdup here and a Fredonia store burglary.

Inspector Eugene Hoyt of the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation at Batavia said first degree robbery and second degree burglary charges were lodged against the youth and a girl, Viola Margaret Hauser, 16, Buffalo, while a 15-year-old boy was held is a juvenile delinquent.

Both Jackie and the girl pleaded innocent, waived examination and were held for Chautauqua county grand jury action, April 6.

The two boys, after stealing a car in Buffalo, picked up the girl and broke into a sporting goods store in Fredonia where they stole seven guns and ammunition, Hoyt related. Then they drove to Silver Creek, he continued, and held up Philip Logan, 43, a lunchcar counterman, obtaining $47.

A state trooper gave chase after Logan reported the license number of the trio's car, Hoyt said and arrested them when their machine skidded out of control in the town of Hamburg.

At 15, Jackie pleaded guilty in Gretna, La., to a housebreaking charge. Giving his age as 17, he was sentenced December 20, 1940, to three years in prison. He maintained he took only an apple because he was hungry.

Numerous pleas from judges, and others interested in the case, that the sentence be set aside and production of the boy's birth record resulted in his freedom February 7, 1941.

Jackie and his mother, Mrs. John H. Swanson, were reunited after his release from the Gretna jail. The Swansons formerly lived at Wales Center, near East Aurora.

Food prices in Cuba increased over 15 per cent in 1941.

Rabbit Killed

Sunday morning a rabbit was struck and killed by an automobile at the intersection of Albany avenue and East St. James street. The dead animal was found lying in the road at 7 o'clock that morning by Officer Robert Murphy. It was not believed an Easter bunny ahead of schedule.

Evacuation of business concerns has greatly decreased the size of London telephone directories.
